MONARCHIST COUP

MARTIAL LAW PROCLAIMED IN ATHENS: BUT ALL IS QUIET

Athens, To-day.

Martial law has been proclaimed following the Monarchist coup. The country remains quiet, though troops are precautionarily occupying the public buildings.

The Assembly will meet this afternoon to proclaim the end of the Republican regime and to vote General Kondylis and the Cabinet executive powers until the plebiscite on November 3 to determine the restoration of King George to the throne.

It is understood that M. Theotoky will be Vice-President and Minister for Foreign Affairs, while army officers will assume other portfolios.

FOUR RESOLUTIONS

Athens: The National Assembly yesterday unanimously resolved: firstly, that the Republican form of the Government was abolished; secondly, that the monarchy of 1911 was restored: thirdly, that the plebiscite should be taken on November 3; and fourthly, that General Kondylis shall act as sole Regent in the meantime.—Reuter.

DICTATORIAL TENDENCY

Athens: Further evidence of the dictatorial tendency of the new Government is supported by yesterday's announcement by Premier Kondylis that the new Cabinet has been formed without the co-operation of the President of the Republic.

It is expected that the latter's resignation is imminent, and it is further stated that the former Foreign Minister, M. Maximos, will continue to act as Greece's representative at Geneva.

Contrary to earlier reports, the functions of the Regency will be exercised by Premier Kondylis alone and not by the Cabinet Council.

Army circles are rejoicing over the prospects of the King's early return. Complete calm is reigning in the capital. Members of the so-called revolutionary committee, who have been chiefly responsible for the Saldaris Cabinet, declared that their task was ended with the new Cabinet taking the oath of office.

EXTENSIVE PREPARATIONS

POLITICAL SITUATION IN CHINA

South-West Leaders Have New Scheme

MR. HSIAO DUE BACK FROM SIAM DURING WEEK-END

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Canton, To-day.

While officials are silent on the political situation, delegates who have arrived here en route to Nanking to attend the Fifth National Congress of the Kuomintang are criticising the Central Authorities for their refusal to accept the four sweeping South-West proposals.

Suggestions are being advanced in political circles here that holding the Congress is ultra vires owing to its postponement on two occasions over a period of two years. Another reason is that refusal to accept the South-West terms for discussion shows that the whole affair is stage-managed.

It is reliably learned to-day that the South-west leaders have some definite scheme to meet the situation. They will first consult with Mr. Hsiao Fu-chen before reaching a final decision, as he is expected back in Canton from Siam to-morrow or on Sunday.

Meanwhile, the Congress delegates have no inclination to proceed to Nanking, preferring to remain here. They are watching for political developments, and some of them are agitating to hold a separate Congress in Canton.

RADIO STATION MISHAP

Aerial Mast Topples Over In Storm

– CHINA MAIL – SPECIAL

Colonge, To-day.

The 525 feet high aerial mast for the radio station near here toppled over yesterday during a violent storm, but happily no one was injured and the transmitting plant was undamaged.

It is announced that the broadcasting service will be resumed shortly by means of a temporary aerial.—Trans-Ocean Service.

ATTACK FAILS

ITALIAN POST HOLDS UP 25,000 ETHIOPIANS

Lightning-Like Night Raid Repulsed

EVERYTHING QUIET IN FRENCH SOMALILAND

Rome, To-

The failure of a night attack on the Italian post of Omager in Eritrea is reported.

The Giornale D'Italia says that 25,000 Ethiopians, equipped with modern weapons, tried to surprise the post under cover of darkness, but were repulsed by Italian native troops, who counter-attacked and routed the enemy.

Situation In French Somaliland

Paris:—The Minister for the Colonies' report on the situation in French Somaliland says everything is quiet. A Franco-Abyssinian detachment has been sent to Diredawa, where the foreign colony is mostly French and the railway repair-shop is situated.

It denies that the Emperor has exercised his right of requisition of the railway for troops in time of war.—Reuter.

"British Ambulance Service In Ethiopia"

London: An appeal has been issued by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Mr. George Lansbury, Lord Lothian and Lord Lugard for funds for "British ambulance service in Ethiopia," which has been formally recognised by the British and Ethiopian Governments and which is working in consultation with the International Red Cross.—British Wireless Service.

TWO TYPHOONS REPORTED

One West Of Manila In Line Of Hoihow

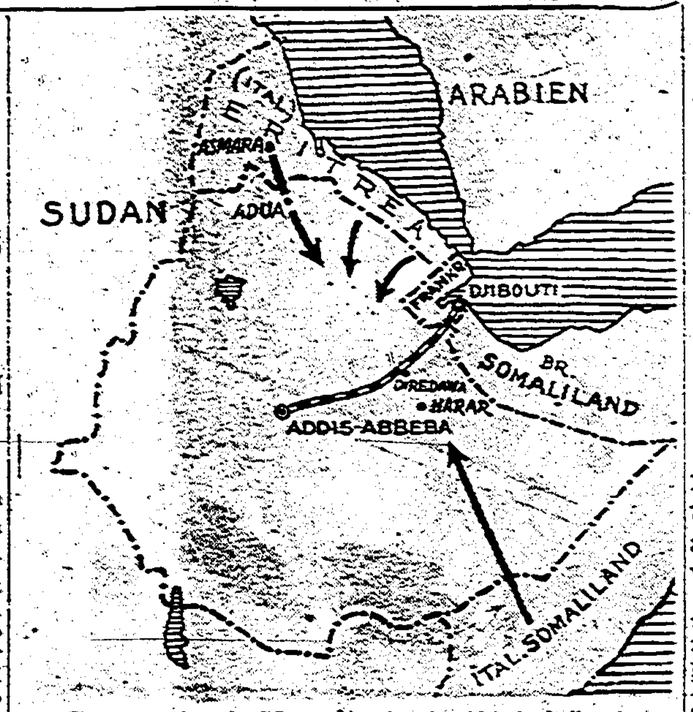
Two typhoons are reported to be moving in the direction of the Colony.

The Manila Observatory reported at 8.45 a.m. to-day that a typhoon was situated in 119 degrees Long. E. and 14 degrees Lat. N., moving north-west. This places the disturbance slightly west of Manila and moving in the direction of Hoihow.

The second disturbance is reported to be south-west of Guam, in the Pacific Ocean, moving west-north-west or northwest.

WEATHER REPORT

A moderate anticyclone covers north-east Japan and a weak anticyclone is centred over the Yangtze Valley. Depressions are situated to the east of Peiping and over the Korean Channel. A small typhoon is situated about 160 miles to the west of Manila, moving north-west or west-north-west. Another typhoon is developing to the south-east of Guam. The local forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory this morning, was: north-east winds, moderate; fine to cloudy.



The arrows show the different directions in which the Italians have the best possibilities in attacking, namely from Eritrea in the North, and from Italian Somaliland in the South.

STOP PRESS

A miraculous escape was reported on the Canton-Kowloon Railway line yesterday evening when the 6.45 p.m. train from Hong Kong to Canton came into glancing collision with the Canton express at Fanling Station, the Colony-bound express having the woodwork of the last four carriage seriously ripped.

There were no casualties, however, and the rumour that one man had been killed originated from the fact that a dead body was being brought to the Colony from Canton.

After some delay the express proceeded to Taipo where the last two carriages were cut off and the passengers were forced to find accommodation in the remaining section of the train.

In view of the fact that the train was crowded to capacity with Chinese returning from the Double Tenth celebrations it was indeed a miraculous escape.

BULLETIN FROM BELGRAVE SQUARE

Duchess Of Kent And Royal Son Proceeding Satisfactorily

GLORIES OF OLD SPAIN

Don Juan To Wed To-day In Rome

Rome, To-day.

The glories of the ancient Spanish Court will be revived to-day when Don Juan, the youngest son of ex-King Alfonso of Spain, marries Princess Mariam Mercedes of Bourbon, Sicily.

The wedding will be celebrated by the Archbishop of Florence in the Church of Santa Maria de Gliangeli, in Rome.

Five thousand Spanish Royalists have arrived for the ceremony, which makes an end to the feud between the Legitimists and the Carlists and will establish Don Juan as the sole future claimant to the Spanish Throne.—Reuter.

FOOTBALL CONTEST AT GAMES

Malayan Chinese Win 9 To 1

Shanghai, To-day.

Before a crowd of 10,000 spectators the Malaya-Chinese soccer team lived up to expectations by defeating the Liaoning Province, Manchuria, eleven by 9 goals to 1 in the First Round of the football contest at the National Athletic meeting yesterday.

The overseas players displayed excellent teamwork and kept the ball in their opponents territory for most of the game. At half time they led by 5 goals to 1.

Hsieh Ching-su, the outstanding player of the match, scored five goals while Yi Ching-hen, Kwang Sheng, Lin Yao-hih and Yao Sheng-hua each netted once.—Reuter.

FREE HAND ALLOWED ON SANCTIONS

IMMEDIATE ACTION FORESEEN

ANTI-BRITISH FEELING IN ROME GREATLY INCREASED

Geneva, To-day.

The Assembly adjourned yesterday until noon to-day after adopting a resolution constituting the co-ordinating committee. Austria and Hungary abstained from voting, while Italy was the only opponent.

Mr. Tecle Hawariate, the Abyssinian representative, during the preceding debate insisted on the need for energetic and immediate action to deal with this "atrocious war conducted by a pitiless foe" and said it was not war, but massacre, owing to Italy's superior armaments. He was ready to accept all procedure on which the League might decide. Ethiopia was ready to conclude an honourable peace, but he must proclaim that it would defend to the death its independence and integrity. It will not yield to force which would put a premium on aggression and be a defiance of international morality.

Venezuela and Uruguay earlier supported the League proposals, but indicated their intention to ventilate certain difficulties in effecting the sanctions in the co-ordinating committee. Peru also supported, while expressing friendship for its large Italian population.

The co-ordinating committee begins work this morning.

COMMITTEE'S COMPOSITION

Geneva: The Bureau has decided that the co-ordinating committee will consist of all the members of the League except Italy and Ethiopia but including Austria and Hungary. It will appoint a sub-committee of about 20 members to deal with the question of sanctions immediately.

The Assembly will not conclude its session when the present meeting is ended, but will only adjourn. At the resumption of the meeting of the Assembly Chile and Ecuador supported the League's decision, while Yugoslavia, speaking in the name of the Little Entente, affirmed they would scrupulously observe all their obligations under the Covenant.

SAVING TIME

Geneva: In order to save time the new co-ordinating committee will be autonomous, will establish its own bureau, appoint its own sub-committee and be able to deal with the manifold aspects of the sanctions without consulting the Council or the Assembly.

ANTI-BRITISH FEELING

Rome: It is opined that it is one thing to vote for the principle of sanctions, but quite another to decide the exact kind that each country will contribute; hence the work of the committee is expected to be long drawn out.

Italians, nevertheless, express a sense of grievance at the speed with which the sanctions are being imposed and a widespread feeling that Britain is forcing the League action is causing increased resentment against Britain.

CORDELL HULL'S STATEMENT

Washington: The State Secretary, Mr. Cordell Hull, has strongly reaffirmed the President's warning that American citizens trading with the belligerents do so at their own risk and added that the Presidential statement was based on the definite policy of keeping the United States out of the African conflict.

Mr. Hull's statement is significant and due to the League sanctions discussions, as President Roosevelt's statement has been interpreted to mean that the United States will not oppose the League sanctions.

FIRST BREACH IN RESTRICTIVE MEASURES

French Policy Aim Facilitated

PARIS PRESS COMMENT

Paris, To-day.

Great prominence is given by all sections of the French Press to the declarations by the Austrian and Hungarian representatives before the League Assembly on Wednesday to the effect that they would not take part in sanctions against Italy, with comments emphasising the difficulty that, under these circumstances, have to be overcome in applying sanctions.

An unmistakable load of satisfaction is detectable in the leading articles because this utterly unexpected development facilitates the attainment of the main aim of the French policy at this moment, namely to dilute the effect of sanctions as far as possible so as to save friendship with Italy.

Great stress is laid by several journals on the conviction that through the independent attitude of Austria and Hungary the first breach in the restrictive measures towards Italy has been opened so

CATHOLIC BISHOP IN PRISON

Alleged Illegal Foreign Currency Transaction

– CHINA MAIL – SPECIAL

Berlin, To-day.

The arrest of the Catholic Bishop of Meissen, Peter Legge, is the latest sensational development in the series of trials of Catholic priests and nuns for offences against the currency regulations.

The investigations made in the course of these cases states that the Ministry of Justice announcement gave rise to a strong suspicion that the Bishop had participated in an illegal foreign currency transaction which took place in his diocese.

Criminal proceedings were therefore instituted by the Public Prosecutor at the Berlin Court, which issued a warrant for the arrest of the Bishop, who is now in prison awaiting trial.—Trans-Ocean Service.

CHILDREN DISLIKE KISSING GAMES

Adults Should Follow The Example

Small children, if they are well-bred, have an innate distaste for kissing games. They prefer hide-and-go-seek to postoffice. It is too bad that they cannot teach their parents a few things about an adult emotion.

Those who are guilty of shoddy trespassing—only of course they call it good, clean fun—should look for a minute into the clear, brave young eyes of the youngsters who have been born since the world came home from war. They have grown up in a world that is hunting for its soul. They want to go places and they hate sloppiness.

They are honest and clean.

Old-fashioned parents used to wash out children's mouths with soap when the children decorated their vocabularies with words that nice little girls and boys should not say. It seems sometimes that a soap-washing contest might be a novel form of entertainment for those who have forgotten that soap has a trenchant taste.

Care Of Trinkets

KEEPING BEAUTY AT SCRATCH

One Night Set Aside For Loveliness

Just as one who wants to be well read and well informed must have dates with books, so must the beauty-minded woman have dates with her cosmetic preparations. Anyway, never to stay at home for at least one evening a week to get a little rest and relaxation is enough to put lines and wrinkles across any brow.

the name of loveliness, take a lei-

On this one night, set aside in the name of loveliness, take a leisurely bath, using a long-handled bath brush and leaving a thick coat of cream on your face while you're in the tub. When you get out of the water, remove the cream, pat on tonic and apply a mask of some kind. While this is drying, manicure your nails, groom your feet, bleach elbows and tweeze eyebrows into smooth, even lines.

When you have finished, remove the mask, use cream again and start brushing your hair. If you have a tonic to correct a special scalp condition, massage it in before you start to use the brush. Keep on brushing for at least 15 minutes.

HEAVY LINENS WEAR BEST

If you have decided to wear white and pastel linens better pick the heavier varieties. They are a trifle more expensive, of course, but they stand up under constant trips to the laundry, stay in press a good deal longer, and, likely as not, will be good another season.

What To Wash And Polish

If brooches, pendants, or other trinkets set with stones are washed, they should be dried in boxwood dust to prevent any loosening of the settings by dampness. Afterwards they should be lightly brushed until all traces of sawdust are remover. Opals pearls, and turquoise should not be washed, but polished with a soft silk handkerchief.

Pearl ornaments or necklaces may be cleaned in powdered magnesia. This should be sprinkled thickly over them, so that it completely covers the stones. It should be left on for a day or so and then carefully brushed off.

Amber may be cleaned with a paste made of powdered whitening and water. The paste should be allowed to dry on the amber, and then polished off with a soft cloth.

THAT WELL SHOD LOOK

Return Of Plain Shoe

There is a definite trend toward the return of the plainer shoe. Even this summer, vieing with the formerly inevitable sandal, plain sport shoes and pumps made a decided reappearance, and now there is a bevy of plain, well-cut shoes in most of the reputable stores.

Sport shoes are not in general use amongst Chinese women, but some of the semi-sport styles would go extremely well with the afternoon dresses we are wearing. And the dress shoes—utterly charming. We are going to be well-shod this year.

RED HAIR BASE FOR BEAUTY

A Opportunity For Redhead

CAN BE MORE FASCINATING THAN THE OTHERS

The red-headed girl, providing she appreciates and knows how to make the most of her hair and light colouring that goes with it, can be more fascinating than either blondes or brunettes.

If her hair is well groomed and in healthy condition, she need spend less time arranging a coiffure. A simple hair style will be most flattering anyway, and her extra minutes can be used to figure out colour schemes and make-up ideas that set off her natural beauty.

One with red locks, either bright or dark auburn, should be especially particular about colours. Black with white touches may give her as sleek sophisticated appearance, but black with pink is sure to detract from her charm. Generally speaking, pink and of course, red, are two shades from which the titian-haired beauty should steer clear.

Colours Important

She will find tones of green and blue to be best. Brown providing it does not have reddish lights similar to her hair, is good, too. An allwhite costume does not provide enough contrasting interest. White in combination with regular red-headed colours will be much more satisfactory.

Choosing right shades of cosmetics is another important task for the red-haired type. They must match perfectly her natural skin tones and they should be applied sparingly. If she is pink and white, she will need pinkish rouge and lipstick and natural powder.

Pale Eyeshadow

Eyeshadow must be the palest green or blue. If she is the brown-eyed type with creamy complexion, darker powder with brownish, rose tones, lipstick and rouge to match her natural colouring are the rules.

THE SMARTNESS OF NEW DESIGNS

Woven Brocades For Evening Wear

Checks, stripes, and crazy lines forming, strangely enough into attractive designs, flowers, diagonals, dots and combinations of any of these run riot over the newest silks, yet the effect is one of smartness and restraint.

At one function the following items were noted: black and white stripes liberally spattered with vivid green and flame spots, while pin-strips blue cheeks interlocked with red and darkblue circles, navy-blue dashed with white, lemon brocaded crinkled crepe with black bindings, grey-blue with green and yellow dots and lines (it looked really lovely, no matter how it sounds), pale peach lace-striped with white silken flowers, and fawn with a conventional flower design in dark brown.

Woven brocades are lovely at night. A pale beige with a tiny flame-spotted pattern a grey with a small black motif, brown with an ivory dot, and a dull-finish embossed blue were outstanding.

BRIDGE NOTES

NEW DEAL

By Ely Culbertson

Bridge has so many laws to govern the play, it is not surprising to find players in a quandary about some of them. Actually, there are nine less than 100, but to some that number is multiplied by inference into thousands.

A man from Alabama writes me asking the difference between "Imperfect Deals" and "Looking at cards during deals." He says, "Under the law there seem to be seven conditions which constitute an imperfect deal, the last of which deals with exposed cards. The contention is that any card exposed constitutes a new deal and any player has the right to call for such. However, under the heading, 'Looking at cards during the deal,' it appears that only the player to the left of the dealer has that right.

"Does this mean that should any player look at his cards during the deal and then a card is exposed, the player left of that player who has looked at his card, has the right to also look at his and determine the deal?"

If during the deal a player looks at any of his cards and thereby causes a card to become exposed, his left hand opponent may look at the cards already dealt him and decide whether the deal should continue or he should claim a new deal. No other player at the table may exercise the privilege of calling for a new deal unless this left hand opponent chooses to waive his rights.

PSEUDO SQUEEZE

When all else fails, declarer's best plan is to make it difficult for the opponents to hold the right card. When one of the adversaries is a weak player who may assist declarer by not giving his partner a count on the hand, the pseudo squeeze is a most effective weapon. To-day's hand was pulled out of the fire by just such a method.

3D.	3S.(1)	4D.	4S.(2)
5D.(3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A dangerous bid. North's previous pass, however, induces West to believe North will not double.
2—A good sacrifice bid.
3—South does not expect to gain much by setting the opponents and hopes there will be a good play for five diamonds.

West opened the spade King and shifted to a heart when declarer's Jack fell. Dummy ducked, and East won with the King. Had a club been returned at this point, all would have been over. But the East player (the weak member of the partnership) returned a heart. Declarer won with the Queen, and laid down the Ace and King of trumps. The trump nine was the entry to the Ace of hearts, on which the ten of clubs was discarded. A club was then led to the Ace, after which declarer played the remaining four trumps.

When the first three of these West had no great trouble, but when the fourth appeared, West was down to the Ace of spades and the King of clubs. He could not tell which to save. On the first three trumps East had discarded two hearts and a spade instead of the more illuminating three spade discards. Had the latter been done, West would have realised there were no more spades in declarer's hand and would have kept the King of clubs. As it was, West's only clue was declarer's false-card of the club ten. West discarded the King of clubs, and declarer made the contract.

BRITISH FILMS AND THEIR FUTURE

I would add. This country has made as great a contribution to motion pictures in the shape of leading players, writers, and directors as has America, if not a greater. But all this contribution has been for the almost exclusive benefit of Hollywood.

Losing Time

While we are making films with American stars, many of whom are looking to the revival of British pictures for a fresh lease of popularity, talented fellow-countrymen and women of ours still have to journey out to California to find the opportunities denied to them at home. Hollywood and the United States revenue reap the reward to our detriment.

There were no film parts forthcoming in England for Charles Chaplin, George Arliss, Ronald Colman, Clive Brook and if it be objected that this was before the advent of the talkies, when conditions were altogether different, one may ask why did our film industry let actors like Charles Laughton and Herbert Marshall slip through its fingers? Neither required any particular building-up as motion picture stars, for both had won fame on the legitimate stage on the opposite sides of the Atlantic before ever appearing on the screen.

In America an Englishman like Edmund Goulding has for years devoted to the direction of pictures and the discovery and development of star material talents which were at the disposal of our industry for the asking but have been given to the greater glory of Hollywood.

Hollywood's Lure

We are pleased to be humorous about the legendary ignorance of Hollywood; but it was America, and not England, which thought it worth while to interest British novelists like Hugh Walpole and British playwrights like H. M. Harwood and the late Reginald Berkeley in writing for the screen.

In addition to this Hollywood has begun to lure away our professional script writers, and our film industry does nothing to hold them, because, presumably, it is not yet awake to the fact that on the screen, as on the stage, the play's the thing. One of the more recent of these recruits, who is among the most successful of our motion picture playwrights, now earns in two weekly cheques at Hollywood about the equivalent of what our English companies formerly paid him for an entire script.

To obtain our share of the world market there is no need to try to beat the Americans at their own game. Let us leave to Hollywood the making of pictures with that indefinable American quality which no foreigner can hope to catch, little masterpieces of thrill and comedy intermingled, like "The Thin Man," or such ultra-competent musical shows as "One Night of Love" or "Roberta," and concentrate on what we understand.

Vision In Films

Hollywood has shown us the way. Its retort to the challenge of British films was "David Copperfield," with the Max Reinhardt production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" to follow. To contend that we cannot do as well as the Americans by our own classics is to argue that we have the talent but not the brains to use it; that we have the stories and natural settings but not the vision to see them in picture form.

Is this true? I don't know, but let me add this: Hollywood may be crass in many respects, but when it comes to trying something new the entire industry, from the director to the make-up man, is essentially humble-minded and anxious to learn. Self-complacency, which is the death of enterprise, has no place with the big American film companies.

A scene from the spectacular R.K.O. Radio production of H. Rider Haggard's famous novel "She", which is being shown at the King's Theatre to-morrow.

MONEY BY FALSE PRETENCES

Pose As Son Of Nobleman

YOUNG MAN SENTENCED

London.

A man of 24, sentenced to six months' hard labour at Marlborough-street recently, was said to have posed as the son of Lord Daresbury and to have deserted from the Foreign Legion.

The man is Robert Dale. It was stated that he had convictions in this country and in America.

A charge against him of obtaining £60 by a trick from Mr. Wilfred Ernshaw Benham at an address in Regent-street, W., on July 5, was amended to one of obtaining the money by false pretences. Dale pleaded Guilty.

How It Was Done

Detective-sergeant Hare said that Dale met Mr. Benham on the Great North road on July 2. Mr. Benham invited Dale into the car. Dale said his name was Greenall, and that he was the son of Lord Daresbury, and had just come back from France, having completed eight years in the French Foreign Legion. Dale said he was making his way to Scotland to get in touch with friends of the family.

"£60 Till To-morrow"

Later, it was alleged, Dale said he could not very well meet his parents in the shabby clothes he was wearing, and he asked Mr. Benham for £60 until next day. Mr. Benham lent Dale the £60, and Dale disappeared.

"He seems to have quite a lot of details of the Greenall family," said Detective-sergeant Hare, "and the Hon. Mrs. Edward Greenall was hailed by this man when she was motoring on the Great North road. He obtained from her certain information about the family, and from that time he impersonated her family. He has also impersonated the Vanderbilts of America and the Daresbury family."

"MOST EXCITING PLACE"

Lord Passfield On Russia

EMERGENCE OF A NEW CIVILISATION

London.

"Here we are witnessing the emergence of a new civilisation," said Lord Passfield—who was announced as plain "Sidney Webb"—at the Fabian Summer School at Rowledge, near Farnham, Surrey, recently. He was referring to the new system in Russia. "It is as different from Western civilisation as Western civilisation is from Islam and Buddhism.

"I consider that future ages will look upon the Russian Revolution and the establishing of the new Social State as one of the biggest things that have happened in the world."

New Categories

The U.S.S.R. was the most exciting place in the world to-day to go to because there were new categories about everything, said Lord Passfield, who was in Russia last autumn.

"For instance, when I was on my way to the school I saw on Haslemere Station a man publicly kiss his wife when they met. If you did that in the U.S.S.R. and the train conductor saw you, he would summarily fine you two roubles."

LORRY DRIVEN DANGEROUSLY

Gaol Sentence Of Fourteen Days

London.

"I must teach you a severe lesson. Go to prison for 14 days," said Mr. Oulton, at Tower Bridge Police Court recently, to Kenneth George Hart, motor driver, of Landell-road, East Dulwich.

Hart, who was summoned for driving a car in a dangerous manner at Tower Bridge-road on July 20, pleaded not guilty.

View Obstructed

Evidence showed that he drove his van out of Leroy-street into Tower Bridge-road in front of a lorry travelling from the direction of Tower Bridge, and hit a bus which was coming from the direction of the Bricklayers' Arms.

Hart said there was a lorry on each corner of Leroy-street, and his view was obstructed. The driver of a lorry signalled him, and he thought it meant it was all clear.

FIRE OUTBREAKS IN ENGLAND

Two Dogs Give Warnings

ONE SAVED BY FIREMEN

London.

Pat, a seven-weeks-old rough-haired terrier, who warned his master and mistress when fire broke out recently in the basement kitchen of a flat in Evelyn-street, Deptford, S.E., was in turn saved by firemen.

Another dog gave warning of fire at a house in Leopold-street, Vauxhall. Mr. Benge was awakened by barking and found his pillow in flames and the room full of smoke. Mr. Savage, another occupant of the house, who is blind, was led to safety by his wife.

Firemen were engaged all night in over-coming a fire which broke out on the second floor of a four-storeyed general warehouse in Goswell-road, E.C., in the City danger zone.

Cottages Threatened

Old Tudor cottages in Loose, Kent's prettiest village, were threatened with destruction by fire which severely damaged one cottage and nearly spread to another. Firemen rescued a crippled boy named H. Quinnell, who was trapped in a bedroom.

Southern Railway trains between Orpington and Holborn had to slow down early recently when passing through a smoke pall caused by fire which broke out at the bridge which spans Avenue-road, Camberwell.

The doors of a motor-car which caught fire while parked in Finsbury-square were locked and firemen had to smash the windows to get to the source of the blaze.

APPEAL WON

Charges Unsupported By Evidence

The Court of Criminal Appeal (Lord Hewart, Mr. Justice Swift, and Mr. Just Lawrence) quashed the conviction of William Hammersley Ansell, who was bound over at the Stoke-on-Trent Quarter Sessions on charges alleging that he had converted to his own use sums of £20 and £30.

The court held that there was no evidence to support the charges and that the case had been misconceived.

Is Jalousy A Disease?

There is a doctor in Rome who has made a considerable name for himself by curing jealously. This doctor first examines his patient's eyes minutely in order to determine the state of the liver and his treatment consists of a reduction of food, an increase of exercise, and certain medicines.

If the liver is sluggish constipation results, with its attendant ills which affect the temper and give rise to an intolerant, jealous state of mind. To restore liver activity and cheerful spirits there is no need to go to Rome; an occasional dose of Pinkettes will do all that is necessary. These dainty little laxative pills, acting in a perfectly normal way, remove any accumulation of waste matter from the system. They banish biliousness and sick headaches, relieve piles, sweeten the breath, make the eyes bright, the skin clear, drive away depression.

Try Pinkettes yourself and you will be delighted with their beneficial effects. All chemists sell them.

POOR FARE IN 2ND DIVISION LEAGUE SOCCER

SOUTH CHINA PLAY SENIOR MEMBERS

FUSILIERS REGARDED AS PROBABLE CHAMPIONS

(By "SCOUT")

There are no games in the Second Division this week that give promise of exciting entertainment, but the best clash will probably be that between the R.A.O.C. & R.A.S.C. and South China at Sookunpoo.

Great things were expected of the combined services' team, but they have so far proved disappointing. They have lost both their matches to date though they have a good team. To-morrow against the Chinese, they will have to play much better if they still wish to contend the divisional honours.

Play Senior Members

The Chinese, taking advantage of the absence of their first teams who are in Shanghai, fielded several senior players against the Athletic last Sunday. The line-up of the South China team is not yet known, but it is to be hoped that no First Division players will be played as their inclusion would be definitely against the spirit of the game.

Should the Chinese field their usual Second Division team, then this game will be worth watching and there should not be much difference in the final score.

By virtue of their great win over the Engineers last Saturday, the Fusiliers are now regarded with awe by all the other Second Division teams. To beat the Shield-holders by four clear goals is a praiseworthy effort and gives an indication of the strength of the Fusiliers' Second team.

This week they will meet the Eastern and should have no difficulty in securing another two points.

Eastern Must Improve

The Eastern have done nothing meritorious to date and have fared badly in the two games played.

ETON CRICKETER FOR COLONY?

PERSSE'S WRIST-WORK FEATURES TRIAL

MADAR MAKES SERIOUS CLAIM FOR RECOGNITION

(By A. E. L.)

CAPT. D. PERSSE practically played himself into the Hong Kong Interport cricket team to meet Shanghai on November 11 next when he played a chanceless innings for 55 out of 89 in 62 minutes, hitting nine boundaries in a knock featured by unusually brilliant wrist-work, in the first trial at the Hong Kong Cricket Club yesterday. I understand he played for Eton about 15 years ago.

The only other players to deserve more than passing comment were A. H. Madar, who carried his bat for 75, scored out of 107 in 80 minutes, and the two fast bowlers A. C. L. Bowker and F. D. Pereira off whom it was most difficult to score.

Madar, who hit twelve boundaries, opened shakily, but later settled down very confidently to score freely all round the wicket. He gave a hard chance off Bowker in the gully when in the thirties. Madar, it will be recalled, saved Eric Mitchell's eleven in Shanghai in 1932 with a chanceless innings for 59. He looks as if he will again secure recognition, especially in view of the fact that he is a good change bowler and a safe fieldsman.

On a lifeless wicket the batting was disappointing. Alec Pearce stepping right in front of a straight one after scoring only a single. Richardson being snapped up in the slips after a promising start. McInnes being caught off a full toss, and E. F. Fincher and A. R. Minu falling to yorkers.

Gosano, a fine all-rounder, again failed to forget he was playing in an Interport Trial and paid the penalty when batting, while his bowling, as usual, was practically of the same length and pace during his five overs. If he varied his bowling, he would be good, and there are few better fielders in the Colony.

FUSILIERS SHOULD DEFEAT STONECUTTERS

Royal Artillery Make Doubtful Move

TROOPING SEASON WILL WEAKEN TEAM

(By "SCOUT")

The Fusiliers, who have produced startling form this season, should experience no difficulty tomorrow in taking both points from the Stonecutters (R.A.) team in their First Division League clash, which takes place at Happy Valley.

The latter, a new team in the League, have not yet produced the form to justify their inclusion in the Senior League and it seems incredible that they were allowed to compete in view of the fact that one other Second Division team, who were their equals if not their betters, were refused promotion to the Senior League!

FOUR EXCITING 3RD DIVISION GAMES TO-MORROW

ST. JOSEPH'S MAKE IMPROVEMENT

AIR FORCE CHALLENGE FOR HONOURS

(By "SCOUT")

The four games to-morrow in the Third Division of the League all promise to be very keenly contested as all the teams are very evenly matched.

Last week St. Joseph's did remarkably well to hold the Fusiliers to a draw and this week against the Liga Portuguesa they will not have so hard a task. The team has again been changed about considerably to give all a chance of playing but the selected eleven should hold its own.

The Liga have not obtained a point yet. They lost badly to both the East Lancs and the Engineers, but it must be conceded that both these teams are among the strongest in this division.

GOSANO BROTHERS RETURN

SAINTS LOSE LEE FROM RIGHT WING

A. K. OMAR TO MAKE DEBUT

(By "Rover")

SEVERAL team changes will feature the First Division League soccer encounter between the Recreio and St. Joseph's which will take place to-morrow afternoon on the former's ground at King's Park, and which is expected to provide some thrilling soccer.

The Recreio, following their meritorious display against the Lincolns last week when they were without the services of A. V. Gosano, B. Gosano and N. Beltrao, are expectd to put up a better showing to-day, although the Saints have also done remarkably well since the season began and are now leading the First Division.

The latter surprised even their most optimistic critics last week when they beat the Club at home by an only goal and this was no fluke either.

The Gosano brothers and Beltrao will again make an appearance for the Recreio, while F. J. Elms, who has been on the injured list for almost a fortnight, will return to his left-half berth, while Ayock has been dropped.

Souza, who was unable to play last Saturday, makes a reappearance at right-back in place of Sinclair, who is being temporarily rested.

New Winger

A. K. Omar, formerly of the Young Indians' football team, who are not entering the League this year, will make his first appearance for the Saints on the right-wing in place of Darkie Lee, who has left the Colony.

The latter was one of the finest right-wingers I have seen for at least two seasons, being tricky and very fast. He will be badly missed by the Saints.

New Life

With A. V. Gosano back in the defence and Bertie leading the line, the Recreio team will probably be fired with new enthusiasm, and I should not be one bit surprised if they proved to be the first team to lower the Saints' colours.

With a very weak left-winger in Fernandes and the right-wing partnership of Lee and Ward broken up, the Saints will have to depend upon their three inside forwards to carry them through to victory, and their splendid intermediate line is certain to contribute towards this end.

SANDFORD NOT YET AT HIS BEST

(By "REFEREE")

Probably the best game to-morrow in the Senior Division of the Football League will be supplied by two military teams, the East Lancs and the Lincolns, who will clash at Sookunpoo.

These two teams have both had their ups and downs, but as far as this season is concerned the Lincolns have made a very bad start, and, but for their luck against the Fusiliers, would have commenced their League programme with an overwhelming defeat.

The East Lancs' strongest point lies in their defence, Swain and Gorman making a happy partnership at full-back. Incidentally, the latter recently staged a remarkable comeback and is now as good as ever.

GOAL JUDGES BADLY WANTED IN HOME SOCCER

70,000 In Near Riot At Highbury

CLUB OFFICIALS DEMAND BETTER REFEREES

London, September 24.

Something will have to be done soon to eliminate doubtful decisions which are fraying the tempers of players, officials, and spectators alike.

If the authorities cannot agree on two referees, I suggest that they compromise by adopting the goal-judge system, which works very well in other countries.

Throughout last week nearly 70,000 people resident in North London discussed and argued about Arsenal's disallowed goal in the match with Sheffield Wednesday.

Award Position

This means 70,000 dissatisfied football followers as the result of only one League match in 44.

Everywhere I go club officials complain about refereeing. "Worse than last season, and that was bad enough," said one. Useless, apparently, to remind them that they rejected the two-referee proposal and the opportunity to give it a trial for a season!

It is the same in connection with the proposal for the numbering of players. Supporters want it. Some day the clubs will wake up to discover they want supporters.

SOCCER TEAMS FOR TO-MORROW

SECOND DIVISION

Club:—Sterling; Railton, Caplan; Nichols, Hynes, and Pearce; Fisher, Williams, Duncan, Greenberg and Sloan.

Police:—Mintey; Greig and Falter; Heyward, Dowman and Manning; Sullivan, Rose, Fraser, Bone and Bentley.

East Lancs:— Williams; Harwood and Steele; Thrope, Carroll and Eckersley; Ball, Bowker, Walkden, Elliot and Griffin.

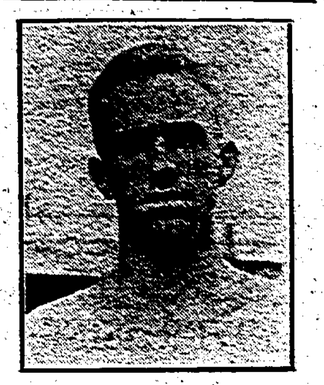
Recreio:—L. Fernandes; Maher and Silva; J. Fernandes, Laurel and Pereira; C. Marques, L. Castilho, Campos, Costa and Alves.

THIRD DIVISION

R.A.M.C.:— Westwood; Ingoe and Wylie; Austridge, Howell and Youd; Morris, Poole, Pym, Slater and Ward.

St. Joseph's:— E. Marques; R. Aycok and S. L. A. Rahman; A. H. Rumsaim, R. Ribeiro and V. Ribeiro; C. Alwai, L. Rocha, A. Gottache, M. Janilho and J. Thirwell. Reserves:— W. Sprinkle, A. H. Baker and W. Maxwell.

Radio:—M. Souza; A. Azim and O. el Arculli; H. Bux, L. B. Kitchell, S. H. Hamet; A. N. Other, H. Souza, S. Yauff, J. Tavares and H. Ahmid.



Bumster, above, is likely to prove to be one of the most dangerous of the Fusilier forwards when they clash with the Eastern team to-morrow.

BITTER RIVALS ONCE AGAIN TO CLASH TO-MORROW

CLUB & KOWLOON AT VALLEY

BICKFERD AND BOYD TO PLAY

(By "ROVER")

Bitter rivals for several years now, the Hong Kong Football Club and the Kowloon Football Club will meet in a First Division League soccer encounter to-morrow afternoon at the Valley, where some fast and exciting play is anticipated.

The Club have made two changes in their team, Sykes coming in at left-back in place of Gamble, who is unable to play, while Bickferd will again be on the left wing.

Kowloon's team is not yet known, but there are likely to be several changes—a newcomer, Blackwood, will probably be making his first appearance.

Hesse's Last Game?

The mainland team will probably have the services of Hesse, their inside-left, for the last time as he leaves for Tsinanfu shortly on transfer, and Paddy Boyd, who was unable to play last week owing to an injured leg, will probably make a reappearance at right-half, where he should do well.

Boyd is a sticker and perhaps one of the finest spoiling halfbacks in the Colony, his one failing being his distribution, which is only fair, lacking sense of direction.

The Club were shocked beyond reason last Saturday when they succumbed to the Saints at Causeway Bay, a silly mistake in the goal area giving St. Joseph's a meritorious win.

Experimental Attack

The Club's experimental forward line has not yet fallen into its stride, but great hopes are being entertained for its success in the near future.

SUNDAY'S SOCCER

POLICE SHOULD BEAT LYEMUN

TWO JUNIOR GAMES SCHEDULED

Three soccer games will feature Sunday's programme the pick of which will probably be that between the Police, finalists in the Senior Shield, and the Royal Artillery, Lyemun, team.

The guardians of the law should have no difficulty in securing both points as they are streets ahead of the Gunners.

First Rung

The latter, like their better halves, Stonecutters, are but climbing the first rung of the ladder and can expect nothing more than a clean exciting game, without the points.

In the Second Division the Lincolns should beat the Radio comfortably, while the Sappers will probably account for the R.A.M.C.

SHANGHAI BOWLERS TROUNCE LOCAL FOUR

FIRST INTERPORT WON EASILY

COLONY LEAD 9-1 THEN LOSE 30-13

LOPES AND MUNRO PRODUCE BRILLIANT FORM

(By "Skip")

UNDER splendid weather conditions, the first Interport match between Hong Kong and Shanghai was played yesterday, Shanghai winning by 30 shots to 13.

The Recreio green, where the contest took place, was in perfect condition, even after the heavy rains. The going was fast and this favoured the Shanghai men who took full advantage of this factor.

I have mentioned already that quite a number of critics considered our visitors to be very talented exponents, and what I saw yesterday convinces me of this truth.

After the first three heads had been played, in which Hong Kong registered 7 shots, due to clever and accurate bowling by Noronha and Luz, Shanghai took command and did not relinquish their grip until they had soundly drubbed Hong Kong by the colossal margin of 17 shots.

Lopes and Munro stood head and shoulders over all; in fact I have never seen a better display than that shown by Munro. In saying this I do not mean to convey the impression that Richards or Glover were poor; both played a very sound game indeed.

Local Players Falter

As regards the Hong Kong four they all had an off day and seemed to find the rink too tricky for their type of play. This is where the visitors revealed their keen powers of observation. To be quite fair to the Shanghai man it must be admitted that the home quartette were out-bowled on the day's showing.

At the first head Hong Kong scored three beauties which were contributed by Noronha, Silva and Luz. Richards saved a heavier deficit by lying in a fairly safe position about two feet behind. They followed this up by taking another three, Noronha being responsible for one and Luz for the other two. At the third head the visitors started to enter the picture and, thanks to fine play by Lopes, whose second bowl was on the jack, lay two until Luz drove to send the jack into the ditch and thus record a single for Hong Kong.

Shanghai Recover

At the next head, however, the Shanghai rink found the run of things, and Munro drew a beautiful shot that none could disturb. At the fifth head the No. 1 on each side was either short or narrow. Guy and Richards made no improvement on this. The skips went down to play with Munro lying the shot, but Luz took this bowl out for a count of two. The score was now Hong Kong 9, Shanghai 1.

On the sixth head the visitors re-asserted themselves and collected through Lopes and Munro.

The seventh head was a repetition of this, the only difference being that Munro was responsible for two of the three shots.

Position In Hand

The eighth head saw the visitors make two more and the scored board now made it clear that Shanghai were the masters of the situation as they had almost overhauled the big lead that Hong Kong had established. At the tenth, eleventh and twelfth heads Richards and Glover found their games and Shanghai registered eight more shots, which gave them the lead for the first time at 16 shots to 11.

The Hong Kong four were now wilting under the heavy strain, so brilliantly were the Shanghai bowlers playing. I do not think we have a four in the Colony that would have been able to defeat them upon this particular rink.

At the 18th head, when they brought their total up to 25, with Hong Kong only 12, by annexing a marvellous four by splendid efforts by all four they seemed to take the heart out of the home players, at any rate after this the visitors did as they liked and brought their total to 30, as against 13.

SILVA UNLUCKY

Unable To Play To-day

As F. X. M. Silva, the Recreio bowler who was to have played No. 2 to A. Hyde-Lay in the combined Kowloon C. C. — Recreio bowls match against the Shanghai team this afternoon, is unable to play owing to pressure of business, his place has been taken in the rink by F. V. V. Ribeiro, also of the Recreio.

The rink now stands as follows:

H. A. Alves (Recreio).
R. P. Phillips (K. C. C.).
F. V. V. Ribeiro (Recreio).
A. Hyde-Lay (K. C. C.).
(Skip).

Allowing for special contingencies, the Shanghai rink will be as follows: W. Train, C. Richards, J. W. Brierley and J. Lopes (skip).

R.A. AND RECREIO IN HOCKEY FRIENDLY

Brigade's Debut Match Of Season

An exciting hockey game is anticipated this afternoon on the Marina ground when the 2nd Hong Kong Singapore Brigade, Royal Artillery, entertain the Club de Recreio in a friendly encounter.

This will be the Brigade's first inter-club game this season, while the Recreio commenced theirs with a drawn encounter against the Hong Kong Hockey Club last Monday.

MR. RALPH HAS DAY OUT AT LOCAL RACES

First Win And The Leading Jockey!

JOHNNIE HEARD'S ONLY REMAINING RECORD SHATTERED

Mr. L. P. Ralph had the unusual distinction of heading the jockey's list by recording two wins—on Zero and Vixen Tor—on the first day of the Double Tenth Race Meeting at the Valley yesterday, his win on Zero being his first success on the Valley track!

In addition to Able Amazon's record-shattering run over the mile and 171 yards, which she covered in 1.57.4/5 four-fifths of a second better than Racing Heart's previous record, established last February under Mr. Johnnie Heard—this was Johnnie's only remaining track record—the meeting was featured by four big upsets. Soldier of Peace paying $232.60, Zero $74.20, Glad Eyes $275 for a win and $48.90 for a place, and Vixen Tor $59.90.

Mr. D. Black again met with success, recording a win, three seconds and a third, as against Mr. Frost's win, a second and two thirds.

The following were the summarised results:

1.—2.00 P.M.—Carnarvon Handicap.—Winner $450. Second $200. Third $100. For China Ponies. Griffins of this season. Winners of less than $1,000 in stakes barred. Entrance $5. One Mile.

L. Dunbar's Pontiac Bay 155 lb. .. (Mr. L. G. Frost) 2
Eu Tong Sen's Rose-Queen 163 lb. .. (Mr. H. C. Pih) 3
Won by a length and 2 lengths. Time: 2.03.3.

2.—2.30 P.M.—Jordan Handicap.—(First Section).—Winner $400 Second $175. Third $100. For China Ponies, "D" Class. Entrance $5. One Mile.

H. A. Browning's Zero 161 lb. (Mr. L. P. Ralph) 1
Wing's Heart's Glory 156 lb. (Mr. N. Deitz) 2
Eve's Boxing Eve 162 lb. ... (Mr. D. Black) 3
Won by a neck and a short-head.

3.—3.00 P.M.—Canberra Handicap.—Winner $450. Second $250. Third $150. For Australian Ponies, "A" Class. Jockey Allowance. Entrance $5. From the Two Mile Post Once Round and In (About One Mile 171 Yards).

Mr. Leo Frost, the champion jockey, above, added to his list of wins yesterday by securing one more win to bring his total to date to 35.

INDIAN POLICE HOLD RADIO TO GOALLESS DRAW

FAST HOCKEY GAME WITNESSED

GUEST AND SANAGAT SINGH SHINE

On the Police Training School ground yesterday the Indian Police hockey team held the Radio Sports Club to a goalless draw in their friendly hockey encounter.

The Radio were to have played the European Police team, but the latter were unable to raise a side as most of their men had been out all night in connection with Wednesday's armed robbery and murder in Kowloon.

Both teams played a man short and the game on the whole was fast and exciting, though in the latter stages bad feeling crept in and tempers became frayed, with the result that the standard of the play deteriorated to a marked degree.

The goal keepers of both teams had very little to do, and both defences were able to hold their own.

Guest Shines

In the Radio team Guest played a very cool game and by clever interception proved the stumbling block to the Police team.

Grewal, his partner, though not so steady, featured his play with first-time clearances and gave Guest every assistance.

In the half-back line Hassan played his usual game and carried M. Souza, his left-half. Kitchell, at right-half, also played a very good game. He displayed great anticipation and his positioning throughout the game was excellent. He is fast and possesses good ball control and, with more experience, will develop into a first class player.

Gurbachan Singh, at centre-forward, could never shake off the attentions of Boota Singh, who stuck to him tenaciously throughout the game. He was greatly handicapped in being without a winger, numerous passes in that direction being wasted.

The East Lancs, though they should beat the University, will be fully extended by them. The latter, in spite of lack of practice, have done very well so far. They forced South China to a draw in the first game and last week beat Kowloon easily. It is to be hoped that when the cricket season starts they will not lose any of their players.

Tam, one of their new players, has been prominent in the forward line and is a very fast player. If the University can keep his team together they should go a long way this season.

In the remaining games the Recreio should beat Kowloon easily as they will have their best team available, while the Athletic should account for the Club.

ETON CRICKETER FOR COLONY?

Ramsey Not Too Confident

Bonavia and Ramsey did not shape too confidently as opening batsmen, the K.C.C. player's use of the long handle against Pereira, though occasionally successful, was dangerous to the extreme. He, however, dealt very effectively with Minu, who bowled better than his figures would suggest.

Ballard caught the eye with some very accurate off break bowling, while his batting—he is a left-hander—was very promising for a tail-ender.

E. C. Fincher's Bright Knock

Teddy Fincher, after playing the bowling very confidently for the first half hour, indulged in some big hitting, getting Ballard away for a six into Chater Road and hitting four boundaries in his 40. He is undoubtedly one of the Colony's opening batsmen for next month's Interport.

Minu also hit a glorious six into Queen's Road off Ricketts, while the latter returned the compliment with a hit that nearly scared the life out of the scorers, after dropping a few yards short with the previous delivery!

P. C. Frost and E. R. Duckitt were absentees, and their vacancies were filled by Ramsey and Garthwaite.

Half-Back Line Is Huddersfield Foundation

London, September 24.—Huddersfield Town's rise to the top this season is all the more remarkable as the side includes but one International, and, incidentally, one Scot. Eight of the present eleven are practically ex-juniors and few had prior experience of First or Second Division football.

"If they had Jackson and Smith on the wings Huddersfield would be the Town of old," one of the most experienced men in football assures me.

One reason for their success is the advance of Leonard Butt, the Macclesfield inside right, who is proving to be a good all-round forward.

A greater is that Lythgoe is clinching the claims one made for him a year ago when the critics were saying he would be out of his depth in First Division football.

But the foundation stone of the new Huddersfield is in the half-back line, where Young is back to his best.

What Millership is to the Wednesday Young is to Huddersfield.

BERLIN SHARE MARKET

BRIGHTER OUTLOOK PREVAILS

—CHINA MAIL—SPECIAL
Berlin, To-day.

A brighter outlook prevailed yesterday on the share market, because many operators who had parted with holdings in the recent international crisis bought back again and, though the turnover was not heavy, prices showed an upward trend.

Fixed interest securities were again quiet, prices being steady. Gold mortgage bonds were weaker, and call money was at 3 per cent. — Trans-Ocean Service.

PRIEST ATTACKED

Knuckle Duster Used In Edinburgh Affray

London.

The Rev. J. Collins, of St. Patrick's R. C. Church, Edinburgh, was attacked by a crowd while preparing to pay a sick call.

Mr. Collins had gone to his garage to fetch his car when the crowd collected. Without warning, he was struck by a blow with what appeared to be a knuckle-duster.

Friends To Rescue

His two companions, Mr. Jack Higgins, president of the Catholic Vigilance Association, and Mr. Michael Cairns, defended the priest from further attack, Mr. Cairns knocking the assailant down.

The crowd again adopted a menacing attitude and Mr. Higgins was struck on the head. He was removed to hospital for treatment, but on leaving was attacked by a number of men, and received further injuries before escaping into the hospital.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

Demand For Industrial Securities

FURTHER NEAR-TERM ADVANCES ANTICIPATED

In their market report, Messrs S. E. Levy and Company, correspondents for Messrs. White Weld and Company, New York, state:—

Stocks: A calmer view regarding the foreign political situation, plus a temporary cessation of selling of railroad issues attracted new buying of industrial securities and special groups. We favour the maintainence of positions in the latter stocks, anticipating further near-term advances. Business done: 1,860,000 shares.

Corn: The Government Bureau estimate is slightly bearish. Estimates of other grains are about as had been expected. Total sales: Wheat: 29,833,000 bushels. Corn: 6,770,000 bushels.

Cotton: The market is anticipating increased pre-holiday hedging on Friday.

Flash: The commodity markets have been much neglected by speculators for some time. The technical positions are healthy and we feel that the markets could quickly respond to any enlargement of outside demand. We advise purchases.

Brokers' Loan during the past week amounted to $825,000,000, against $879,000,000 the previous week.

The Collins and Aikman Corporation has earned $2.73 per share during the 6 months ended August 31, against a small loss last year.

The following cable was received last night:

Rubber: With 90 per cent. restriction and less general business, futures will be sold at over 16 cents. With 60 per cent. restriction better consumption and declining primary shipments, futures will be only 12.50 cents. Factory stocks need replenishment and speculative holdings are small. We suggest accumulation.

Brahms's Songs To "Ophelia"

INTERESTING DISCOVERY

In 1873 Brahms wrote settings of Ophelia's songs in the fourth act of "Hamlet" for a Viennese actress, Olga Precheisen, who was playing the part at the Burgtheater. The first performance was on Dec. 22, 1873, when the Hamlet was Josef Lewinsky, the Ophelia's future husband. The songs remained hidden for many years, but just recently Mme. Lewinsky has permitted their publication. Karl Geiringer is the editor; the publishers Schirmer and Boosey and Hawkes.

It seems late in the day for unknown songs by Brahms to see the light, but Dr. Geiringer's word satisfies us that they are genuine pieces and not Kreisleriana. The simplicity and folksong character of the pieces are appropriate to the purpose. There is an apt model tune to "How should I your true love know?" On the stage the tunes would, of course, have been sung unaccompanied, but Brahms wrote piano accompaniments, no doubt with a view to private performances. The pieces are too slight for concert use.

Haydn Sonatas

The associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music publishes Eight Selected Pianoforte Sonatas by Haydn, edited by Aubyn Raymar. As an indication of a revival of interest in the delightful music contained in Haydn's neglected piano works, this is very welcome. The selection, however, seems abitrary. The greater Haydn is not represented at all.

In an academic edition the absence of a preface and the paucity of the dates cited are rather strange, and the editor has failed to give cross-references to the numbering of the sonatas in the collected editions.

The choice of sonatas seems to have been dictated by the degree of facility. All are easy. But Haydn, even when writing in the narrowest range, was unfailingly himself, fresh, varied and appealing. Another new volume in the same series contains a selection of pieces from Anna Magdalena Bach's "Clavierbuchlein," edited by Vivian Langrish.

Dr. Walker's Waltzes

Recent piano music includes "A Waltz Suite," Op. 60, by Ernest Walker, for two pianos (O. U. P.). This will be voted good fun by duettists of a certain accomplishment. There are pleasing ideas in plenty, and, while not far-fetched, the harmonic idiom is by no means lacking in colour. Above all, this is genuine piano-duet music.

Augener's publish a revised edition of Tobias Matthay's Variations in A minor, Op. 28. This elaborate composition is designed for the serious student, drawing as it does on an immense variety of technical devices.

Smaller Pieces

Smaller pieces for the pianist are Waldo Warner's "The Clown" and "The Beef" (Winthrop Rogers)—the former a scherzo-like fancy, and the latter a study in tempestuous scales and sonorous chords — and "The Dreaming Spires," by Alan Richardson (O. U. P.), a pastoral composition of genuine musical quality, although seeming to be more by chance than inner nature a piano piece.

TAINTED FOOD IN LONDON

Sources Traced By Ministry

AFTER MANY DEATHS

London.

The Ministry of Health announced recently that several fatal cases of food poisoning had been traced to the consumption of nut-meat brawn sold by a London firm since the middle of July.

It is believed that all sources of supply have been traced and that the outbreak has been checked.

"The distributing centre has been traced," Dr. Pritchard, Assistant Medical Officer of Health for St. Pancras, said. "The food believed to be affected is not on sale now, but the danger is that some householders may have in stock a supply of the nut-meat brawn bought before Tuesday of last week, the day when sales were stopped.

"Everyone in this position should forward all their supplies to the Ministry of Health, giving details of where and when the food was bought."

Botulism

The cause of the suspected infection of the nut-meat brawn is thought to be botulism. This will not be known definitely until a complete analysis has been made.

Botulism is a term applied to a type of food-poisoning caused by the toxin arising from the presence in improperly preserved foods of the Bacillus botulinus.

Four deaths have occurred in North London. The victims were:

Mrs. Amelia Oppenheim, aged 61, of Clareville-grove Studios, Kensington;

Mrs. Sylvia Jacobs, aged 49, of Birkeck-road, Mill Hill (Mrs. Oppenheim's sister);

Mr. Peter Walter Slingsby, aged 69, of Lissenden-mansions, Parliament Hill; and Miss Edith Slingsby, aged 54, of the same address.

The inquests on all four were opened and adjourned by the St. Pancras Coroner (Mr. Bentley Purchase) pending an analysis.

Boy's Death

It has been thought that an 18-year-old son of Mrs. Jacobs, who died a few days before his mother, might also have been affected, but at Redhill Hospital, Edgware, he was found to be suffering from meningitis.

Three sets of analyses are being made by investigators into the cause of death in the four adult cases. One is being conducted by Dr. Pritchard, the second by Sir Bernard Spilsbury, called in by the St. Pancras coroner, and the third by the Ministry of Health.

FREEDOM FOR MINISTER

Torquay Council unanimously approved the conferment of the freedom of the borough on Mr. Ernest Brown, Minister of Labour.

NOTE! Owing to the length of the feature the performances will start promptly on time!

John Boles, Jean Muir and Charles Butterworth have the leading role in "Orchids To You," a Fox Film production, which will be shown at the Alhambra Theatre next Sunday.

SHORT SHOTS

MR. and Mrs. Fredric March (Florence Eldridge) and Douglass Montgomery are among the famous film people now on holiday in England. March has to return to work very quickly as he has been chosen to enact the lead in "Anthony Adverse," after half the leading men in Hollywood had been named.

* * *

Jessie Matthews' first film for M. G. M. has been delayed as Robert Montgomery, her leading man, has two other pictures to make first. Clifton Webb, famous Broadway dancing star, and Una Merkel will also be in the cast.

* * *

Pauline Fredric, who is now the wife of a Colonel in the American Army—her fifth husband, by the by—will make a return to the screen for Twentieth Century.

* * *

There has been a rift in the lute somewhere, and William Powell and Myrna Loy will not be in "Wife versus Secretary" with Jean Harlow, but M. G. M. are trying to obtain the services of Warner Baxter and Claudette Colbert. (I can't see Miss Colbert agreeing, somehow).

Constance Lupino, mother of Ida, will make an appearance in Hollywood films, her first being with Katharine Hepburn in "Sylvia Scarlett."

It is rumoured that Mary Pickford may play the part of "Dearest" when Freddie Bartholomew plays "Little Lord Fauntleroy." It will be recalled that Miss Pickford played both parts in the silent version.

Bette Davis will again be teamed with Leslie Howard when he films his successful Robert Sherwood play "The Petrified Forest."

Conchita Montenegro has married Raoul Roulien (seen and liked in "Flying Down To Rio").

* * *

Joan Bennet, who acted with Ronald Colman in his first talkie, "Bulldog Drummond," will be opposite him in "The Man Who Broke The Bank At Monte Carlo."

WONDERFUL CAMERA WORK AND IMAGINATION IN "SHE"

"GINGER" GIVES GRAND OPPORTUNITY TO CHILD-ACTRESS JANE WITHERS

"THE LITTLE COLONEL" NOW AT THE MAJESTIC

By Diane

"THE CRUSADES" is a characteristic Cecil B. de Mille "Epic," with a theatrical story. It will prove to be an evening well spent for the de Mille lovers, but the more critical-minded can only look at it from a spectacular point of view and extend their congratulations to the master-director for his handling of the crowds and the battle scenes.

The players are somewhat overshadowed by the magnificence of the production and the astonishing camera work. The story in this lengthy yet impressive entertainment tells how Richard the Lion-Hearted (Henry Wilcoxon) takes England's host of Crusaders to the Holy Land to escape marriage with Alice of France (Katherine de Mille) and through lack of supplies is forced to marry Princess Berengaria (Loretta Young) when he begs help from the King of Navarre. The young couple fall in love, and meet trouble and disaster when "Alice" and "Saladin," a Saracen ruler, do their utmost to separate them. This leads to the clash between the armies and these scenes are masterfully handled by directors and crowds.

Loretta Young looks regally lovely, and no one could be more ideally cast than Henry Wilcoxon in the leading role. Ian Keith, C. Aubrey Smith, Joseph Schildkraut, Alan Hale and hundreds more do exactly what de Mille orders.

Go to this picture knowing you will see conflict, romance, colour, religion and a super-spectacular show; it is a triumph for Paramount and de Mille. (Queen's).

"Ginger"

Jane Withers, who made an impression as the mean little girl in "Bright Eyes," has now been made another Fox star, and is out to gain sympathy instead of being childishly wicked. There is no doubt the little girl is clever, but I do not compare her with the "Miracle Child" Shirley Temple, who will not be equalled in this century, if ever.

Jane does everything from an imitation of Garbo to reforming the cast. We are told how, as an orphan, she is reared by an ex-actor till adopted by a rich woman with a priggish son—needless to say this character is excellently played by Jackie Searl. Jane's best scenes are with that extremely clever and likeable actor Walter King, who made such a big impression in "One More Spring."

IT is many years since I read "She" by Rider Haggard, but the film does not bear much resemblance to the original, if I remember rightly. Hollywood, or rather Producer Merian Cooper, tells how John Vincey, an English scientist, dying of radium poisoning, reveals to his American nephew Leo a secret known only to himself and his co-worker, Dr. Holly.

Vincey asserts that there is a flame in existence that will give man eternal life. Leo and Holly start for Muscovy, and at the farthest outpost meet a trader, Dugmore, and his daughter Tanya. There is a landslide and Dugmore and others perish, but Leo, Holly and Tanya find a secret passage through the mountain. Then comes one terrible adventure after another, eventually ending up by their being seized and taken to "She-who-must-be-Obeyed," Ruler of Kor.

The climax need not be disclosed—It would spoil one's enjoyment. The picture is worth seeing, as such strange unearthly fantasy is seldom seen on the screen, and the camera work is marvellous, with imaginative settings never equalled.

Helen Gahagan (Mrs. Melvyn Douglas) from the Broadway stage, is truly regal in her personification of "She," and acts with taste, dignity and distinction. Nigel Bruce is—as usual—rather casual in his acting, and Randolph Scott seems a little out of his depth. Helen Mack, a grand little trouper, brings life to a character that is hard to believe.

The picture is interesting from a spectacular point of view, but it is not drama. (King's).

"Orchids To You"

This is a handsomely produced and well-cast show which parades through a swanky New York flower shop. Trite story, which tells how playboy Charles Butterworth proposes daily to pretty Jean Muir, the fashionable lady florist, while John Boles, a handsome young lawyer, also becomes entangled in a strange fashion with the florist's shop and the female attraction.

At least let it be said there is pleasure enough in the fact that John Boles sings—and very well too. Sydney Toler, Spring Byington, Harvey Stephens, Ruthelma Stevens and others are well directed by William Seiter. Coming to the Alhambra.

Shirley Temple In "Curly Top"

Ever since we first saw this "Miracle Child" in "Stand up and Cheer," then went into rhapsodies over the finest child performance ever seen in "Little Miss Marker," to be followed in the course of a year by half-a-dozen equally successful pictures—placing this six-year-old girl as the greatest box-office attraction in the world today—cinema fans go to each picture expecting and knowing that they will see a performance they will remember.

Now in "Curly Top," which many will recall as "Daddy Longlegs," we see this adorable child-wonder in easily her greatest performance to date. Due at the King's on Friday October 18. Not to be missed. A treat for young and old.

"Lilies Of The Field"

In its own quiet way, this B. & D. Picture is one of the neatest and nicest comedies which has yet come out of a British studio; also it gives charming Winifred Shotter the chance for which she has so long waited. Throughout the play her performance is a delight and, added to her pretty looks, she has charm and poise.

"The Informer"

This story is based upon Liam O'Flaherty's novel of the struggle between the "Black-and-Tans" and Ireland's secret army. It offers Victor McLaglen the finest part of his career, and as "Gypo Nolan," the ignorant giant with the small, mean mind, who sells his pal to the enemy and is then betrayed by his own conscience, he gives one of the really outstanding performances ever seen on the screen. The story is stark in its realism to the point of sordidness, but it is a magnificent character-study of a man who betrays a friend, not through malice but through weakness, and of his mental sufferings as a result of the impulsive step he has taken.

The scene is laid in Dublin in 1922, when rebellion was running rampant. John Ford, who directed the picture, must be congratulated upon his really masterly work; he has made Margot Grahame and Heather Angel give performances that I did not think either was capable of giving. Una O'Connor, Preston Foster, Wallace Ford, Donald Meek, Joseph Sauers, J. M. Kerrigan, all come in for a share of praise.

The outstanding figure throughout the play is Victor McLaglen and his portrayal of his suffering and remorse is stirring to a marked degree. This certainly places him in the very front rank of great actors, in the class of Paul Muni, Fredric March, Edward Robinson and the Emil Jannings of of the movies.

If you wish to see some of the finest performances, direction and photography ever recoded in Hollywood then you will not miss this. It offers one of the strongest dramas the screen has given us. (King's).

Jean Withers, the "meanie" in "Bright Eyes," has the leading role in Fox Film's "Ginger," which is now showing at the Alhambra Theatre.

A scene in the court of the palace of Kor in the R.K.O. Radio production of "She", which is being screened at the King's Theatre tomorrow. Helen Gahagan is in the leading role, and is supported by Randolph Scott, Helen Mack and Nigel Bruce.

A typical scene from the spectacular production of "The Crusades" now showing at the Queen's Theatre.

Jean Muir and John Boles are in the leading roles in "Orchids To You," a Fox Film production, which will commence at the Alhambra Theatre next Sunday.

CHINA YEAR BOOK

1935 EDITION

The 25 Chapters of the 17th issue of the CHINA YEAR BOOK, edited by H. G. W. Woodhead, C.B.E., have as usual been revised or rewritten with the assistance of many experts, Chinese and foreign, and every effort has been made to bring information and statistics up to date.

The Chapter on the Kuomintang covers the political history of China in 1934. The Chapter on the Chinese Government contains the Text of the Provisional Constitution, the Organic Law, and the Draft of the Permanent Constitution.

The Chapter on International Issues gives the text of the Agreement and Exchange of Notes of the sale of the Chinese-Eastern Railway, besides the latest documents relating to Sino-Japanese issues.

China's Communications — Railways, Roads, Post Office, Telegraphs, Wireless, Telephones and Aviation—are very fully dealt with.

Father D'Elia, in the Chapter on Religions, contributes an interesting Chronological Review of Catholic Missions in China.

Mr. E. Kann is again responsible for the Chapter on Currency and Banking, and the Loan Tables.

A new feature is a Chapter on China's Modern Industries.

Double Tenth Reflections

The meeting at the new Bank Building was as large and representative as even that vast construction could accommodate; and everybody was ready to toast the future prosperity of the Bank in genuine champagne, which is not so often tasted in Hong Kong as the uninitiated imagine. In the outlying portions of the City holiday crowds were commemorating the triumph of the ideals of Sun Yat Sen and the establishment of a Chinese Republic. The two celebrations are on the surface incompatible; the practical and the idealist, the Foreign and the Oriental, the theory and the means of fulfilment. In fact however it may safely be said that if only a financial basis of trade and administration could be fixed as firmly as the foundations of the new building, the superstructure of Republican ideals could be run up much more quickly, and more beneficially to the struggling millions to whom a little more or less means all the difference between prosperity and starvation.

It was not to be expected that on a ceremonial occasion the speakers would go beyond the usual generalities of congratulations and good wishes; and in any case it is obvious that a solution of our perplexities cannot be given in a few sentences improvised to please a casual audience. But in season and out of season we wish to emphasise that there is one task that all our financial and official authorities have marked our for them, and that the future prosperity of the community and the Bank itself depends on how that task is done. Our trade is being throttled by higher and ever higher imposts of all sorts; and the excuse for these imposts is that the value of our money itself is so liable to change that a fence has to be built up to protect the local manufactures from being undersold. There is no reason to suppose that the Banks, in spite of the fact that these changes mean something very substantial in the way of "rake-offs," are deliberately maintaining the present chaos. It is difficult to say on whose shoulders the blame must be cast; but it is quite clear that when the dodge of depreciating currencies has been noticed and the bluff has been called by the imposition of high tariffs and dumping duties, it is time to get back to simplicity and commonsense. The real prosperity of any community and any Bank rests on the activity and enterprise of the workers. When financial conditions compel one after the other to close down industrial enterprises the outlook is poor for everybody.

And what has all this to do with the Double Tenth? Far more than appears. On the question of the merits of Republic versus Empire or Monarchy, we are of opinion that Pope's maxim applied; "For forms of Government let fools contest; that which is best administered is best." In the long run that is the test that will be applied by the people; who are after all the matter of the experiment of any new form of Government. Dr. Sun Yat Sen's principles are partly of Occidental origin and partly derived from the communism and the dreams of Lenin. From the point of view of the manufacturer or the trader they are not at all easy to understand or to reconcile with each other. It is obvious that he had the welfare of the common man at heart — nobody doubts that. But in Russia itself there has been great development of theory and modification of practice. The peasant is naturally an individualist, because his work produces just about enough to keep himself and his family alive. What he wants is security of enjoyment of the produce of his labour in the fields. The abstruse questions of communal ownership of "the means of production and exchange" are very modern problems that really concern the industrial population in these days of mass production and other very advanced developments of manufacturing technique. Consequently at the present time about eighty per cent. of the population of Russia and Siberia are not living on a communist basis, and are not much concerned about the basis on which the factories in the towns are worked. In China the proportion of workers on the land is probably greater; and what they want is exactly the same. They want protection from bandits and from unlawful demands of tax-collectors and other officials; they want to be sure that if they save money they can deposit it safely and draw it out when they want it for fertilisers or other purposes. Whatever local agencies may in a small way satisfy their equirements for their simple finance, it is quite certain that these local agents will be unable to function unless the big Banks at the big centres are doing their part by prudent and honest use of the great engine of credit, and the equally important function of the reservoir of savings which will never fail to meet their obligations. The practical efficiency of a big Bank has more to do with the realisation of progressive ideals than we are apt to recognise.

Here, There, and Everywhere

PAGANISM IN ACTION

In the advertisement pages of Gen. Ludendorff's "pagan" periodical, "At the Holy Spring of German Power," there is some unusual reading.

"Heathen girls," runs one advertisement, "who have left school will receive training in philosophy, housework (with garden) and needlework in the German Faith Institute."

That pagan beliefs are not regarded as incompatible with business ability is suggested by the following: "Wanted for chemist's business in the Saar, an experienced heathen assistant."

There are also marriage advertisements. One runs: "Exchange of thoughts with heroic, heathen, go-ahead Nordic maiden from the land sought by German of same beliefs."

Less venturesome, another German heathen "wishes for exchange of thoughts with idealist German maiden 22 to 28 years old."

POET OF CRICKET

Cricket has produced some scholars, notably Mr. C. B. Fry, but few poets. Lord Tennyson has not inherited the metrical gifts of his grandfather, and one has heard of an England captain who could neither spell nor write grammatically.

Lord Gorell, barrister, publisher, and man of letters, better remembered by the pre-war generation as Ronald Gorell Barnes, the old Oxford bowler, who is both an Old Wykehamist and Old Harrovian, is an exception.

Lord Gorell published in last month's Cornhill, which he edits, a poem entitled "At Lord's," dedicated to Mr. W. Findlay, the secretary of the M.C.C.

It contains some lines which will have a permanent place in the poetry of cricket:

There is a field in England,
A tended, velvet field,
Where Life is like a sundial
And thoughts old fragrance yield:
Where sternly with Dominions
A friendly war is waged,
The crown of all the combats
By English summer staged.

The seaplane has been ordered to remain in the air for five hours.

BRITISH FILMS AND THEIR FUTURE

AMERICAN CHALLENGE MUST BE MET

GREAT SCOPE FOR ENGLISH METHODS DISPLAYED

(By Valentine Williams)

LIVING in the United States for the past four years, I have witnessed the slow but steady struggle of British films for recognition on the other side of the Atlantic. Time was when in America they were dismissed with a shrug as a definitely second-rate article.

People would say, "Oh, a British film!" in the tone Americans use in speaking of the coffee served in England—or as we speak of the tea you get in the United States.

I never dreamed that the day would come when I should find queues waiting at a Broadway box-office to see a British picture, with one critic outvying the other in praise. British films have still a long road to travel in order to keep pace with, let alone excel, Hollywood's best, and win a place on the screen of America's innumerable picture theatres.

New Approach

But at least they have achieved this. The average picturegoer in the States no longer says, "It's a British film, therefore it's a dud!" He is much more likely to say, "It's British, therefore, since they're showing it, it's probably different from, and quite possibly better than, Hollywood!"

The British film industry has reformed itself and is advancing with great strides. We have not been too proud to go to Hollywood for our groundwork, notably on the technical side, with the result that at last we have begun to turn out pictures that challenge the Americans on their own ground. British film companies to-day are much better supplied than formerly with the necessary working capital to carry on their fight against what was once virtually an American monopoly.

In the whole story of British enterprise, nothing is more romantic and more satisfying to our national pride than the way in which certain British films have forced themselves, through sheer merit, upon the American consciousness.

Question Arises

The question now arises: What use do the British film companies propose to make of this favourable situation? Don't let us deceive ourselves as to the difficulties before us. The issue is simple enough. Does the industry intend to compete with Hollywood in the world market, or only in the Empire and the rest of the non-American field?

Hollywood starts with a tremendous advantage over all rivals through the fact that the average successful American film can be relied on to cover the cost of production, and also net a handsome profit, before ever being screened outside the United States. Thus any profits made in the foreign field are "money for jam."

To challenge effectively Hollywood's control of the world market—there are no two ways about it—we shall have to make films with the huge American audience of picture-goers in mind. The alternative is to go on in the same way as at present, concentrating on the British Empire field, which means that our output will be produced for about one-third of the available market, with profits in proportion.

Names Wanted

Since all the world over the picture-goer wants names, we shall continue to short-circuit the inevitably slow process of star-making by engaging Hollywood's surplus, without reference to the fact that few stars are likely to leave the world's most promising field of motion picture activity unless that field is definitely leaving them.

At the same time, the bulk of British pictures will doubtless feature as before stories whose appeal is restricted rather than world-wide; that is to say, limited to our fellow-citizens of the Empire. Where American stars are not employed we shall continue to rely chiefly on British stage artists, whose names, however well known in England, have little or no box-office value away from home, or at most among Empire audiences.

If a picture produced on these lines chances to make a hit with the vast army of American picture-goers, that is all to the good. The method seems haphazard and scarcely worthy of a business with the tremendous potentialities of the British film industry.

"Mind Of Thirteen"

The largest film audience in the world is the American. Its collective mentality has been defined—by an American—as "the mind of 13." It is the depressing truth that this same mind of 13 is the ultimate determining factor in American motion picture manufacture.

It controls the box-office receipts, on which, in the final instance, the success or failure of a film depends. By this test it is not uninteresting to note that the most famous stars and the most rapturously reviewed pictures are by no means the most successful. Eddie Cantor is probably better "box-office" than Greta Garbo, while "It Happened One Night" certainly "grossed" more than many much more pretentious productions.

We can be highbrow about it—though I would not describe as intellectual "The Private Life of Henry VIII," or "The Man Who Knew Too Much," or "The Scarlet Pimpernel," all of which British films were enthusiastically received in America—and say: "What do we care about the mind of 13? We shall go on producing pictures appealing to the superior intellect of our British audiences."

Neglected Stars

Or we can say: "Let's claim our share of audiences in the English-speaking world by making pictures which we have shown we know how to make, on British themes, with British backgrounds and British stars." If anybody really believes that the common level of intelligence of picture audiences varies according to nationality, it will be time enough to take this matter in hand when the British film industry is established on a sound business footing.

I have said that the picture-goer wants names. Names mean stars. The theatre-goer says: "Let's go and see that new Ivor Novello play!" The picture-goer, however, asks: "How about that Katharine Hepburn picture?"

Here is one of the major difficulties with which the British film industry has to contend. Entirely through its own fault,

FRAUD ON WIFE

Husband Used Her Bank Account

AN UNUSUAL CASE

London.

The Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies, in his report for last year, refers to an unusual case which came before him—a claim by a woman against a savings bank for deposits withdrawn by forgery. The woman married a clerk who, although she did not know it, was unemployed. He paid her £12 a month for 18 months, and then she discovered that her bank account was being reduced by her husband's forged withdrawls.

"She refrained," says the Chief Registrar, "from informing the bank for reasons which do her credit as a wife, but it is necessary for me to consider what the effect fo her action may be in law."

Two Solutions

The husband—who was later convicted—promised his wife not to repeat his methods, but twice broke that promise.

The bank contended that the woman was not entitled to be re-credited because she had received the money as a monthly allowance from her husband.

The Chief Registrar held that it was not likely that the bank could trace its money into the hands of the wife, and in his award directed that her account should be credited with the sums fraudulently withdrawn up to the time when she discovered what was happening and failed to tell the bank.

ALLEGED CHILD MURDER

Mother Remanded To Holloway

London.

Annie Elizabeth Blackman, aged 21, living at Beaconsfield-road, Friern Barnet, was remanded at Highgate recently, accused of the murder of her newly born child.

Inspector Ambrose said he arrested the woman at the Wellhouse Hospital, Barnet. Blackman was the mother of a child aged 17 months. This child had been with its mother at the hospital, and was now in court in charge of a police matron. The mother was very fond of this child, and wished to be allowed to take it to Holloway Prison with her. Blackman was a country-born girl with no friends in London.

The magistrates granted the mother's request and the police application that, owing to the woman's poor state of health, she should be taken to Holloway Prison in a motor-car instead of a police van.

EDUCATIONAL USE OF CINEMA

Proposal To L.C.C. Committee

London.

The cinema is becoming more and more a part of elementary education.

Experiment in the use of the cinema in the class-room is advocated in the report which was submitted to the L.C.C. Education Committee recently by the General Purposes Sub-committee.

Projectors Need

The sum of £300 included in the programme for this purpose, it is stated, will only suffice for the purchase of two or three projectors.

As these will not be adequate for the conduct of an experiment of real value the Sub-committee propose that, of £1,000 included in the programme for visits to cinemas, £500 shall be diverted to the purchase of projectors.

ATONEMENT AFTER 22 YEARS

£5,000 Gift By Murderer

FOR DAUGHTER OF HIS VICTIM

Vienna.

Twenty-two years ago two men began quarrelling while drinking in an inn at Miskolcz, Hungary.

They were Heinrich Kadar, a young locksmith, and his best friend, Sandor Bogar.

Kadar stabbed his friend to death.

He managed to escape arrest and fled to the United States. He was sentenced to five years' imprisonment for manslaughter in his absence.

Cheque Received

Now the Miskolcz police have received a cheque for £5,000 from Connecticut (U.S.A.), and a letter from Kadar in which he begs the police to hand over the money to his victim's daughter, who at the time of her father's death was a baby.

"I have worked hard for the money," wrote Kadar, "and I hope to atone with this gift for the deed which I have repented deeply ever since."

The girl has not yet been traced.

A DISAPPOINTING BOOK

Undistinguished Short Stories

A somewhat undistinguished collection of American short stories make up the "O. Henry Memorial Award" volume. The first prize story idealises, in the usual way, a buck-negro escaping from gaol: a murderer with the heart of a child, and all that. The third prize goes to a story which begins:

"Horizontally wakeful amid universal widths, practising laughter and mirth, satire, the end of all of Rome and, yes, of Babylon, clenched teeth, remembrance, much warmth volcanic, the streets of Paris, the plains of Jericho, much gliding as of reptile in abstraction."

and so on, for another half-dozen lines. This may be pretty, but I defy even the prize-awarder to know what it means. One asks, therefore, why only the third prize? Why not the first? Or none? Why, indeed, at all?

To-day's Short Story

Out Of The Frying Pan

By Tanjong

PEMBURY was not superstitious. Friday the 13th had no special significance for him beyond the fact that it was the day on which the monthly north bound steamer, the boat on which he intended to travel to China and safety, put in at Maipua. He could, of course, have secured a more comfortable and direct passage from Brisbane, but there were reasons, very cogent reasons, which urged him to take the first craft going anywhere away from Brisbane, and the anywhere chanced to be New Guinea.

It was not his fault that the company of which he had lately been chairman, secretary, and treasurer, but by no means sole shareholder, should have come to an abrupt ending. It was doomed from its inception, and where was the profit in flogging a dead horse when there was profit to be made from the hooves and hide. The hooves and hide in this case were the remaining liquid assets of the company.

That was six weeks ago, and he had been in the not very entertaining town of Maipua for nearly a fortnight, during which time he had converted a good deal of those same liquid assets into liquid refreshment. That and dicing for the honour of paying for it were the two staple recreations in Maipua. But in spite of the depredations made by the calls of thirst and amusement there still remained a healthy sum of the shareholders' money on which Pembury hoped to live comfortably for a time in China. When that was gone, maybe he would float another company.

It was an attractive prospect, but like the late company it died in infancy, for on Friday, the 13th, Pembury was arrested.

Two passengers disembarked at Maipua from the China-bound steamer. One was the trader's agent, the other was a stranger, a handsome giant of a fellow with a pleasant face. Without hesitation this man strode up to Pembury with a friendly hand out-stretched. "You'll be Maurice Pembury?" he asked.

"That's my name," admitted Pembury, "but I don't seem to remember you."

"No you wouldn't. I'm Sergeant Terry Dunn, of the police, and I'm here to take you back to Brisbane."

That seemed to cover all necessary explanation: Pembury recognised Nemesis, and replied, "All right, sergeant, then we may as well have a drink."

Over the third whisky Pembury said, "How are we going back, there's no boat for three weeks now."

"The Mariposa will be along in four days' time," was the reply. "She's a dirty little tub, but she's snug."

"I know," nodded Pembury, "I came here in her. In the meantime, I suppose you're keeping me in close custody?"

Dunn gave a grunt of laughter. "Now why should I be doing that?" he asked. "You're not a criminal, you're only an absconding bankrupt."

This information came almost as a shock to Pembury. So they hadn't found out about the missing money? Not yet, but, once back in Brisbane, discovery and its consequences would be inevitable.

"And what's more," Dunn continued, "not a soul here knows me nor my business and I'm not telling 'em. I'm just an old friend dropped in to see how you're going on."

"Not that it would matter a damn," laughed Pembury. "There's not one of them here on his proper side of the prison bars. What are they saying about me in Brisbane?"

"Not much; they're just wondering why the devil you got the wind up and bolted."

Pembury didn't wonder, he knew why.

When, four days later, they embarked on the Mariposa, her captain showed no surprise at seeing his late passenger in the company of a policeman; such events were common in the islands. As long as prisoner and guard were on such obviously friendly terms the why and wherefore did not concern him.

They spent the first day lolling in the shade of the deckhouse drinking long drinks, smoking and yarning late into the night, for it was too hot to face the airless discomfort of the cabin. They awoke next morning to find the little vessel threading the channels between a maze of small islands so massed together that they reminded one of a disintegrated jig-saw puzzle, and on one occasion they skirted the land so closely that Pembury remarked "Twelve strokes might take a desperate man ashore here," and Dunn glanced at him with suspicion. "You haven't got that in your mind, have you?" he asked.

"I'm not such a damned fool," replied Pembury. "See those points sticking above the water? They're not reefs, you know; if you watch closely you'll see they're moving with us."

"Sharks?"

ROYAL NEWS REEL OPERATOR

Duke Of York Tries His Hand

SUCCESSFUL VENTURE

London.

The Duke of York turned newsreel cameraman at his camp of public schoolboys and working lads at Southwold recently.

Two film cars with cameras on the roofs followed the Duke as he was watching boys at play on the sports ground. Walking over, the Duke spoke to one of the operators.

"I have my own cine-camera," he said, "and I am very interested in these."

The mechanism was explained to him.

"Panning" Round

"I'd like to have a shot at making a film," said the Duke; and he climbed on to the roof of the car beside the cameraman.

The Duke focused the lenses, switched on the camera motor, got his speed running correctly—this, it was explained, was important because of the sound arrangements—and then, with his eye glued to the view finder, "panned" round following the runners in a race.

He took several shots, exposing in all about 500ft.

Standing On The Roof

The Duke then climbed to the roof of the other film car.

"Let's make a film of those fellows playing over there," he said, pointing to the far end of the field. With the Duke standing on the roof, the car drove over.

This time the Duke required no instruction. He made about 200ft. of another film.

The Duke has his own projector and theatre. The films will be sent on to him.

Double Tenth In Canton

Canton, To-day. — Celebrations of the Double Tenth continued to-day, although the efforts to bring prosperity to trade failed to achieve its purpose. Most of the big firms were closed yesterday and failed to reap any profits by possible rush business.

Those who benefited by the celebrations were the buses, rickshaws, hired motor cars, restaurants, hotels and tow-boats. The Kowloon-Canton trains and steamers are also being well patronised. Many people are still booking rooms in hotels through which the procession passes in the morning and at night.

The bus traffic has been interrupted by the procession, and public vehicles have to make detours. Fares for rickshaws and motor cars have been raised by 60 to 80 per cent.

The procession, which passed through the principal streets, will be repeated to-day. Last night a lantern procession wound its way through the streets and drew large crowds of people, most of whom are from the country. The streets are very crowded.—Our Own Correspondent.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED

Geneva: The League Assembly proceedings yesterday closed with the adoption by the whole Assembly, representing 53 nations with two abstentions, of the presidium's draft resolution—later termed "wish"—in view of the objections of a technical nature made by Baron Aloisi.

This "wish" expresses the readiness of the members of the Assembly to co-ordinate the measures they intended taking by means of a committee on which each nation would be represented by one delegate and experts.

The task of this co-ordinating committee would be to examine and provide for the uniform execution of sanctions and to draw the Council's attention to any circumstance which might need its investigation. The President of the Assembly, Dr. Benes, stressed that this committee would not be an organ of the League Council or the Assembly but represented it merely as a kind of conference between members for the purpose of deciding on the application of Article XVI.

FIRST MEETING

The new Committee, in which therefore all the members of the League can participate, held its first meeting this morning, while at noon to-day the Assembly will meet for the final meeting of the present part of the session.

The single dissenting vote was naturally cast by the Italian representative, while the abstentions were the Austrian and Hungarian delegates, who, apparently because of pressure applied meanwhile, abandoned the negative attitude expressed at Wednesday's meeting and have contented themselves with the form of indicating their sympathies with Italy.

CLIMAX IN DEBATE

The debate reached a climax earlier in the day, in the first part of the session, as the result of statements by M. Laval, and Mr. Anthony Eden in which they both affirmed their countries' determination to defend the League of Nations' Covenant as a bulwark of International Law, although M. Laval somewhat qualified this declaration by hinting more or less plainly that he still hoped for success in another attempt at conciliation.

This utterance appears to strengthen the rumours current ever since M. Laval's conversation with Baron Aloisi last Sunday. He stressed his inability to share in any measures which would bring Switzerland's neutrality into question.

The Soviet representative, M. Potemkin, emphasised the necessity for uniform action as a surest means for terminating the war, which was only due to a desire for colonial expansion at the cost of the national independence of a member State.

RESOLUTION SUPPORTED

The representative of the Negro Republic of Haiti declared that the League of Nations must at last prove its worth even if it was only a question of an independent black nation being subdued in a so-called colonial war.

Short speeches in support of the resolution were then made by representatives of Mexico, Chili, Venezuela, Yugoslavia and the Greek delegate, M. Madimos, on behalf of the Balkan nations.

Statements were then made by the representatives of the South American republics of Bolivia, Uruguay, Ecuador and Peru which coincided in the view that, despite their friendship for Italy, the provisions of the Covenant must be applied as the League had created a new conception of justice which terminated an epoch of gaining a desired end by force of arms.

ABYSSINIAN PROTEST

The last speaker was the Abyssinian delegate. He protested against the insulting terms in which his country had been spoken of in Italian quarters, particularly against the allegation that the Negus had made a provocative speech.

In view of the invasion of Abyssinia now proceeding he made a plea for rapid and efficient action on the part of the League.

The barbarism of war with modern equipment against a nation armed with only antiquated weapons, he added, made the embargo on the export of arms to Abyssinia an act of injustice which grew every day it lasted.

Abyssinia was at the League's disposal for any attempt it might make to end hostilities and was prepared to conclude an honourable peace. She would, however, defend her independence and integrity to the bitter end and would not agree to the aggressor receiving any form of indemnity.

The vote was then taken with the result recorded above.

ALOISI'S PROTEST

Geneva: Deliberations on the sanctions question were resumed yesterday when the League of Nations' Assembly met promptly at 10 o'clock.

The first speaker, Baron Aloisi, who at great length criticised the procedure of the League, above all complaining that the Italian Memorandum on Abyssinian conditions was not taken into consideration, but disposed of with the hurried remark that the examination was made superfluous by the events of October 3; and secondly that after hostilities had broken out the Italian delegation was given no opportunity to state their viewpoint adequately, by passing a resolution regarding the conflict.

Baron Aloisi complained that, whereas in the East Asiatic conflict of 17 months ago and in the Gran Chaco dispute, two years passed before Article XV was applied, while in the present case only one month had elapsed!

FAILURE INTENSIFIED

The failure of the League is intensified by the aggressive attitude of the Abyssinians, and the mobilisation of over 1,000,000 men compelled Italy to act.

Italy's special interests in Abyssinia are recognised by the existing treaties, above all by that one between England and Italy of 1925, concluded after the Abyssinian entry into the League. Thus Italian interests in Abyssinia are nullified neither by the League of Nations Covenant for the entry of Abyssinia into the League.

The Italian delegate concluded that all separate parts of the Covenant must be brought into harmony with one another and given the requisite flexibility.

MR. EDEN'S SPEECH

London: In Geneva, all but the unanimous approval by the Assembly of the League Council's action in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute and the fact that the Co-ordination Committee is to get to work at once is welcomed as a promising success to the efforts under the League Covenant to restore peace and the achieve an agreed settlement.

The concluding sentences of Mr. Anthony Eden's speech yesterday morning have attracted considerable attention. "We all of us contemplate with the deepest regret the duty that now confronts us, but the regret, however deep and sincere, cannot absolve us from fulfilling those obligations to which we have set our names. Since it is our duty to take action, it is essential that such action should be prompt. That is the League's responsibility — responsibility based on humanity, for we cannot forget that the War is actually in progress. We must, therefore persist in that action which our obligations command us to assume, but not to abate by one jot our hope for an early and peaceful settlement."

It is widely expected that the Co-ordination Committee will be able to complete the first part of its difficult task in a week or ten days.

SURPRISE CAUSED

Both in Geneva and in London the speeches of the Austrian and Hungarian delegates have caused some surprise. The need of certain countries for special consideration in the event of the application of Article XVI has always been recognised and, in the present case, is likely to receive the sympathetic consideration of the Co-ordinating Committee, but the fact that the two countries, which in the past have owed so much to the League's action, should have chosen to abstain publicly from associating themselves with the unanimous decision of the League Council, which has secured the approval of over 50 nations in the Assembly, is the subject of unfavourable comment.—British Wireless Service.

STEWARDS MARCH OFF SKIP

But Steamer Sails With New Staff

London.

The Thames steamer Royal Eagle, bound for Southend, Margate and Ramsgate, with about 1,000 people on board, sailed five minutes late from the Tower Pier recently because of the sudden resignations of several stewards.

Just before the ship left stewards collected their luggage and marched off in a body. The passengers were not aware of what was happening.

All Replaced

An official of the General Steam Navigation Company, owners of the Royal Eagle, said:

"As soon as we knew of the resignations, we replaced the stewards with fresh men.

"The passengers are not suffering the slightest inconvenience concerning the serving of their meals. Every facility is available as usual.

"The stewards who resigned were on the temporary staff."

Numerous pictures of King George had been posted on the walls throughout the city on the preceding night.

Early yesterday morning the Royalist leader, General Metaxas, issued a proclamation inviting the population to assemble in front of Parliament House in order to demonstrate in favour of the Monarchy. Leaflets setting forth the aims of the Monarchist movement were distributed in the streets all day.

Numerous garrisons in the provinces, according to official reports, have already declared themselves in favour of the monarchy.

The entire garrison of the capital is meanwhile being held in a state of alarm in order to prevent eventual disturbances.

GOVERNMENT OVERTHROWN

Athens, Earlier: The growing tension created by the Monarchists' determined campaign for an immediate restoration of the monarchy by a vote of the National Assembly, led yesterday to the overthrow of the Saldaris Government and the formation of a new Cabinet of a decided military composition and headed by the former War Minister, General Kondylis, who has in recent months changed from a staunch Republican to a leading Royalist.

The new Cabinet immediately took over office before the National Assembly, which met yesterday for the opening of the new Session, and it was subsequently announced that the Assembly would immediately proceed to vote on the restoration of the monarchy and appoint a Cabinet to act as a regency council for the time being.

It is, however, intended to hold a plebiscite anyway, on November 3, but the popular vote will be merely of a confirmatory character and will empower the Government to invite ex-King George to return to Greece and reascend the throne.

MARTIAL LAW PROCLAIMED

The new Government's first action was to proclaim martial law. The list of ministers has not yet been completed, but it includes Premier Kondylis, who also takes over the Ministry of Finance, the War Minister, General Papagos, the Minister of Marine, Admiral Ecomonou, Minister of Air, General Nicolaidis, the Minister for Economic Affairs, M. Darveris, the Minister of Justice, M. Chloris, the Minister of Agriculture, M. Yannopoulos, the Minister of Interior, M. Shinas, the Minister of Public Welfare, M. Attogenis and the Minister of Communications, M. Mabromichalis.

It is anticipated that M. Theotokis will be appointed Foreign Minister and acting Premier.

COLLECTIVE RESIGNATION

The new turn of events has been forced by a group of generals who informed Premier Saldaris yesterday that the Army was demanding the immediate restoration of the monarchy and the return of the former King.

The Cabinet assembled at once and decided on collective resignation, whereupon the Generals requested M. Kondylis to take over the Premiership.

The new Government evidently constitutes a sort of military dictatorship since the army holds most of the important posts.

The dictatorial character of the new regime, moreover, is underlined by the proclamations of martial law, which in all probability will be followed by the rigorous suppression of Republican opposition.—Trans-Ocean Service.

FLAG DAY FOR S.P.C.A.

Appeal For Support

We may be suffering from "Slump" but we are British, and we have to keep up our traditions.

And one of our oldest traditions is the habit of being kind to animals. The local "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals" is going to have a Flag Day to-morrow instead of the office-to-office collection made in previous years.

We shall be most grateful if the generous firms who have given subscriptions in the past will continue to do so, and ask that they will very kindly send them to the secretary by post. We are confident that everybody will buy a flag to-morrow.

MAN SERIOUSLY INJURED

Shot While Being Shown Revolver

London.

While, it is believed, he was being shown a revolver by a friend, Thomas Broom, 32, of Rashleigh-street, Clapham, suddenly collapsed from a gunshot wound.

He was taken to the Battersea General Hospital where an operation was performed for the removal of a bullet from the stomach. His condition was later stated to be serious.

An Accident

The incident occurred in a yard at Wilard-street, Clapham, where Broom is employed. He was able to inform the police, who questioned him at his bedside, that the shooting was an accident and that the man who was displaying the revolver was a friend of his.

It is stated that the man had removed six cartridges from the weapon, but had replaced one when it went off.

DIVE TO RESCUE SISTER

Courageous Act By Boy of Nine

London.

Nine-year-old Ronald Sydes, of Gibson-gardens, Stoke Newington, has only just begun to learn to swim. But when his sister Pauline, aged 8, fell into the River Lea from the towing path near Springfield Park, Clapton, he dived in to her rescue.

He was soon in difficulties and both of them were brought out by Mr. J. Andrews, of Maclaren-street, Clapton. After treatment at the Prince of Wales Hospital, they were able to go home.

"Ronnie is always having narrow escapes," his mother said. "Last year a barrow in which he was sitting was completely smashed by a motor-car. He was thrown out, but not badly hurt."

Ginger Rogers wants her contract with R. K. O. "adjusted"—and rightly so. She is bringing, with Fred Astaire, millions to this Studio, works terribly hard, and is only in receipt of the ridiculously small salary (considering her great box-office appeal) of $1,250 a week and—don't forget it—Garbo, who is perceptibly slipping in public favour, draws $12,000 per week.

John Boles will play with Shirley Temple in her next picture, "The Littlest Rebel." Strange that I should have written long ago to Mrs. Temple suggesting this play, which I well remember on the Broadway stage with the famous Dustin and William Farnum and a little girl named Juliette Shelby—who afterwards became famous in the movies as Mary Miles Minter.

CHANNEL BUOYS

WHAT would modern navigation do without the channel buoys — those floating markers that keep ships off the shoals? In a very real sense, the advertisements in this paper are channel buoys, placed for your protection —for the safeguarding of the family expenditures.

These advertisements are the signed statements of reputable firms who seek your patronage on the single basis of giving value for every dollar spent. They are honest statements, the only kind an advertiser can use and remain an advertiser.

People who get the most for their dollar in the market-places are those who keep an eye on the channel buoys. Day by day, they follow the advertisements to learn what and where to buy to the best advantage. Make this a habit. Study the advertisements, in the interest of shrewder buying.

The advertisers in this paper have charted the channels of buying for you. Keep to the course.

Out Of The Frying Pan

"Yes, these channels swarm with the brutes. I've been through here before, but I'll be hanged if I know why the skipper's doing it now: it takes us hours out of our course."

They strolled up to the bridge house and put the question to the captain, who for answer pointed to the rapidly falling glass. "If we're not in for a blow before nightfall you may call me a pastrycook," he said. "Under the lee of the islands it won't do us much harm, but I'd hate to be out in the gulf in what's coming."

"What course are you setting?" inquired Pembury. The captain laid his rule across the chart beside him. "Close as we can steer for the south-east corner of that large island, then sou'-west and out into the open sea."

A sudden idea flashed into Pembury's mind. He knew that island well. The S.E. was dented with a number of little bays, there were few reefs and no sharks. He was a strong swimmer and a couple of miles of smooth water seemed to him a lesser evil than a certain two years of gaol in Brisbane. Once ashore, a few miles across the headland would bring him to a small port where he could get a passage to almost anywhere.

The captain's prediction proved to be correct; late in the afternoon a thin smudge of cloud appeared racing across the sky; they saw the island palms bend double, snap and burst into a scatter of flying fronds. A few seconds later the wind struck them with such force that even in her sheltered position the Mariposa began to buck like an ill-tempered mule.

Dunn was a good policeman but a poor sailor: it took exactly five minutse to reduce him to a helpless, groaning mass of misery, and it took all Pembury's considerable strength to drag the inert body of the policeman down the companion steps and hoist him into a bunk, where he lay alternately accepting and rejecting pannikins of brandy and water until towards morning he fell into an alcoholic doze.

Pembury did not sleep; at the first glimpse of dawn he rose quietly from his bunk, tied his jacket and shoes into a bundle, and went on deck. In the rapidly growing light he saw that they were already close in to the headland. The wind had died away to a mere breeze, but the sea was running higher than he had anticipated. He would have to risk it; in a very few minutes the Mariposa would be turning into the open sea. He gave a glance up the deck, deserted save for the dark form of the native serang at the wheel, then, looping the bundle round his neck, he slipped noiselessly over the rail into the water and struck out for the beach.

He had been swimming steadily for some minutes before he realised that the set of the current was carrying him beyond his objective and back into the channel. Well, he would have to get ashore where he could and trust to finding his way overland. Unfortunately the choice of direction was no longer in his hands, for on looking round for his bearings he found that the current had taken command and was sweeping him father and farther out to the centre of the channel and the menace of sharks. Moreover, his strength was giving out; he made a wild attempt to get closer in shore but at last, becoming exhausted, rolled over on his back and resigned himself to whatever might happen.

A sudden swishing noise dragged him back from his semi-stupor. Sharks! In terror he twisted over and saw; not the dreaded dorsal fin, but a small yawl-rigged boat 50 yards away and standing towards him, but as he watched it gibed and stood off on another tack. Pembury cursed aloud and got a mouthful of sea for his pains. His exclamation was not only of disappointment but surprise, for as the boat turned he saw that the tiller was swinging loose. She was derelict. Once more she came towards him and with a few desperate strokes he reached her, grabbed the bobstay and dragged himself across the gunwale, losing in the effort the bundle containing his shoes, his jacket and the residue of the "liquid assets."

The simple story tells of twins—daughters of a country Vicar, who receive a visit from their grandmother. She will take one of them with her to London, but she must "click" with a certain favoured young man coming to lunch. "Betty" (Winifred Shotter), hearing he is a young dry-as-dust antiquarian, decides to assume the manners and modes of a genteel young lady of the early Victorian day. This causes lots of amusement, but later on she has to carry the craze into London society and thereby sets a new fashion.

The settings of the picture give additional charm, and the cast all contribute to the enjoyment. Judy Gunn is the other modern young Twin, while Anthony Bushell is at his best in parts where he has to assume old-world courtesy. Miss Ellis Jeffreys brings her stage technique to bear somewhat in the role of the Grandmother, but Hubert Harden is the country Vicar to the life. Recommended as very pleasant entertainment, attractively acted and produced. (King's).

"Car 99"

Fred MacMurray who made a hit opposite Claudette Colbert in "The Gilded Lily" is a young police recruit who falls into the bad books of the sergeant in charge.

The film is interesting in that it affords an insight into the methods employed by the American police in forming a network of motor "cops" round sections of the State in order to catch motor bandits. It also gives us an opportunity to see Sir Guy Standing in the role of a smooth, confident, cruel master-mind of a gang of crooks. There is plenty of excitement, including an automoblie—versus motor-cycle race.

The love interest is only lightly touched upon, with Anne Sheridan as the girl who wins the heart of hero. Frank Craven, William Frawley, and a host of others give good acting performances. (Queen's).

"Wings In The Dark"

Another aeroplane picture with good clean thrills and a grand cast, including Myrna Loy and Cary Grant. Miss Loy is a trick pilot who earns her living by stunting, while Grant belongs to a different school of flying, and has invented a device which he believes will make "blind" flying safe.

No more of the story; but, although incredible at the finish, it makes for grand thrilling entertainment. Amelia Earhart gave technical advice, and Cary Grant especially does excellent work. Advised. Coming to the Queen's.

Majestic

First comes Shirley Temple in "The Little Colonel," a period comedy-drama of family strife in America after the Civil War. Lionel Barrymore is overshadowed by the famous little girl, but does much to help in the big success of the film. Evelyn Venable, John Lodge, Sydney Blacker and an adorable dog are in the cast, but the other outstanding figure is Bill Robinson, the noted Negro-dancer. You won't soon forget the amazing dance on the stairs, performed by the "Miracle Child" and "Bill" (as the family butler), also another intricate one in the old stable.

Shirley has a vehicle in this play this gives her wonderful opportunities. She gives us tears and laughter and looks a little dream of beauty in the old-fashioned clothes. The Management announce they will give to all Patrons a Figurette and Photograph of this amazing child actress, which should esnure packed houses. I can assure you that a second or third visit is advisable to this picture in order really to appreciate the versatility of "Our Little Girl."

This Fox picture is followed by an M.G.M., "The Mark of the Vampire," a weird production that is genuinely ghostly and shivery. The wonderful cast comprises Lionel Barrymore, Bela Lugosi, Carol Borland (with an amazing make-up), Lionel Atwill, Henry Wadsworth, Jean Hersholt and Elizabeth Allan. Next comes a Chinese picture. (Majestic).

Oriental

"The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," shows us soldiering in modern India, with a glamorous, realistic background. It has everything in the way of thrills, stark drama and suspense, with colourful atmosphere, and amusing light moments.

Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell, Sir Guy Standing and C. Aubrey Smith deserve honourable mention. Henry Hathaway, the adaptors of Yeats-Brown's novel and the cameramen all deserve the highest praise. A picture you can't afford to miss seeing at least twice.

Followed by one of the best vehicles Shirley Temple has had so far, "The Little Colonel", showing her amazing versatility, Lionel Barrymore and Bill Robinson are the chief amongst the grand support. Both pictures with the highest recommendations. (Oriental).

Star, Kowloon

Tullio Carminati, who found world-fame in the great musical "One Night of Love," is co-starred with charming Mary Ellis in "Paris in Spring." This is light comedy with delightful song numbers and beautifully produced.

Ida Lupino, Jessie Ralph and James Blakeley are in support; but Miss Ellis and Tullio Carminati make this trivial story really worth seeing.

Followed by "Their Big Moment." Here is one's first chance in years to see Zasu Pitts as a tragedienne. Not that the play calls for much of the tragic, but as the rather grotesque figure in this farce, although she does all her usual stuff, there are moments, as when it suddenly dawns on her that as the music-hall magician's incompetent assistant she is not needed in the act, but is an easily replaceable nonentity—when one feels more inclined to weep than laugh. She does exceedingly good work in the scene where she goes off into a genuine trance and speaks the truth instead of the "fake" lines she is supposed to say.

Zasu Pitts is in a class by herself with her twittering hands, her hang-dog expression and mournful eyes. For her work alone in this film I should say "See it."

Followed by "Voltaire," starring George Arliss, but it must be admitted that this is one of the weakest of his pictures.

"Ten Dollar Raise," starring the delightful and deservedly popular Edward Everett Horton, is a simple story but by virtue of its natural, every-day characters and naturalness it is truly enjoyable. (Star).—DIANE.

The boat was half full of water: her late occupant whoever he was had evidently been washed or blown overboard in the previous night's hurricane. Risking the chance of a sudden squall he cleated down the main sheet and lashed the tiller to keep her up to the wind; then he started to bail and as the water fell he discovered under the thwart a leather belt with a pouch and knife sheath. The knife was missing: it had probably gone overboard with the owner.

In curiosity he pulled open the pouch and gave a shout of astonishment at the sight of the fine pearls it contained. What extraordinary luck, he thought, as he roughly estimated their value. What did he care about the "liquid assets" now at the bottom of the sea. Here was something ten, nay twenty, times its value. He buckled the belt round him and having unlashed the tiller, set his course for the rocky point which masked the little harbour. The breeze had fallen away to nothing and during the two hours of semi-drifting he had time to consider his position. There were people in that port and he would have to invent a tale which need not include the true facts of Friday the 13th. He would not claim ownership of the boat: it might be recognised. The belt and its contents were another matter.

As he rounded the point the lounging figures on the little jetty came to life and crowded down to the shore to meet him as he beached the boat.

"Hallo, where have you come from?" and before he could answer a voice said "Damned if that ain't Ferrers's boat from the islands."

That gave Pembury his cue, he replied. "I was washed overboard last night and was lucky enough to bump into this boat drifting."

A tall man stepped forward. "Drifting, eh?" he said. "There wasn't anyone in her when you found her?"

"Empty, I tell you."

"Hm! What boat are you off?"

"The Bintang schooner." Any name would do, reasoned Pembury, it wasn't likely that they'd know the Bintang.

His inquisitor pointed to the belt. "You've lost your knife," he said.

"It must have dropped out when I fell overboard."

"Yes, and it came ashore before you did. Want it back?" Pembury nodded.

"Come and claim it then." The tall man turned and followed by Pembury and the crowd, led the way up the beach to an attap thatched hut. With a sudden gesture he dragged the old sail from the table, exposing the body of a man with the haft of a sheath knife standing up between the shoulders. "There's your knife, where you left it," he said. "Ferrers brought it ashore like that."

Pembury shrank back. "What the hell do you mean?" he cried. "I've never seen the man before in my life."

"No? Then what are you doing with his belt? Hold him, fellows." Two of them seized Pembury's arms and the tall man stripped the belt from his waist, opened the pouch and emptied the pearls on to the table. "Ferrers's stones," he said. "Is that proof enough?" The others nodded assent. "Then sling a bight over that beam."

"No, my God, no!" shrieked Pembury. "You can't do that, I didn't kill him; if you want to charge me with that you must charge me in the proper courts."

"We run our own courts here," was the grim answer. "Tie his arms, fellows."

(The End.)

Fowler has yet to get used to playing leader, while Forrow and Elliott, two fairly good insides, have yet to curb their impetuousity to shoot when a judicious pass would have met the case much better.

To-morrow's game on the whole should produce a fine struggle with the odds on the Club team

Both the Royal Artillery teams, Stonecutters and Lyemun, have not yet displayed anything like the form which was expected of them, and, unless they buck up their ideas, it looks very much as if they are going to finish at the bottom of the League together.

Fusiliers Challenge

The Fusiliers in view of their recent form against both the Lincolns and Police, are exerting a strong hand towards championship honours and it very much looks as if South China "A" will be the only team to hold them in check.

The Fusiliers have an excellent defence in Wheeler and Keating, while Wanklyn, Keneghan and Ellis are fast taking the place of that famous Borderers' intermediate line which was led by the never-to-be-forgotten Podmore.

Doubtful Move

The Gunners, or rather Stonecutters, have not yet settled down, but even when they do I very much doubt whether they will be of any consequence. There is something vital lacking in the team and I personally think it was a very bad move when the strength of the Gunners was divided into two separate teams.

The Gunners, like every other military unit in the Colony, from time to time lose their players through the trooping season, but this year it will not be one team that will suffer, but two!

It takes considerable time for players to settle down to each other's play, as the Gunners will probably discover later on in the season when the new drafts arrive in the Colony.

An Example

An instance of this was supplied towards the end of the 1932-33 season when the Gunners lost several of their outstanding players in one batch. They were never the same again, although they made a valiant struggle with Pardoe leading the team and Allan keeping out the invaders!

However, the outcome remains to be seen, and, as for to-morrow's game, I do not hesitate to forecast a win for the Fusiliers.

Coming Player

Sanagat Singh, a youngster, gave indications of great promise. He played a clever game yesterday and, together with Gurbachan Singh, was seen in some nice passing bouts.

In the Police team Boota Singh was outstanding. He kept a continual watch on G. Singh and never allowed him any rope. His work was made easier by having one forward less to mark and he was sometimes able to help his own forwards. In his duels with the opposite centre-half, Hassan, he, however, invariably came off second best.

The backs, Balwant Singh and Karnail Singh, were safe, although the latter frequently infringed with "sticks."

Rulia Khan played a sound game in the opening half, but fell off badly in the latter stages.

"Sitter" Missed

Play was very even from the start and neither side were able to get in a good shot. The Radio were often within the circle, but were not given a chance to shoot.

The Police should have taken the lead midway through the second-half, when Amayat Hussain, given a "sitter," missed the ball completely.

Radio:—U. B. Souza; Guest and Grewal; Kitchell, Hassan and M. Souza; Harbajan Singh, Gurbachan Singh, Sanagat Singh and Jawgeer Singh.

Indian Police:—Man Singh; Balwant Singh and Karnail Singh; Chanan Singh, Boota Singh and Darbara Singh; Amayat Hussain, Fuja Singh, Taja Singh and Rulia Khan.

STIRRING STRUGGLE PROMISED

Finest Service Halves!

Smith, Lawton and North are probably the finest Service half-back line in the Colony and, judging on Lawton's displays to date, he stands a very good chance of ousting Beltrao from the pivot position for Inferport honours.

Sandford, who caused quite a sensation last year by his meteoric rise from the Third to the First Division, has shown but mediocre form this season, although he commenced this season's football with a rousing display against the Shanghai Chinese tourists, being responsible for some very pretty openings.

Good Inside-Right

Mather is a good right-winger when he wants to be, while Horner makes as good an inside right as can be found among the Service teams.

Ridings and Ratcliffe, the East Lancs left-wing combine, have been playing together for some time, but have not yet acquired the distinction of the Baldry-Ridley partnership.

The Lincolns also possess an excellent defence in Ash and Edmundson, while Thompson, Deeming and Robson played together for the greater portion of last season.

Unsuitable Halves!

The Lincolns, however, have not the half backs they should have. The present intermediate line are excellent spoilers, but their distribution is sadly lacking in something.

The fact that the Lincoln inside-forwards are repeatedly compelled to go back for the ball, instead of having someone send it forward, speaks volumes for itself.

We all know that Malpas and Ridley are two excellent inside-

VETERAN CORONER

Salary Increase On 86th Birthday

Lancashire.

Sir Samuel Brighouse, the Lancashire coroner, who celebrated his 86th birthday recently, had his salary raised during the day by £104 a year to £1,296, by the Lancashire County Council.

There was some opposition by Socialist members of the council. Councillor Constantine (Accrington) said a man of that age should retire. Ald. Rogerson (Salford) said he should be enjoying himself in his old age, instead of dealing with sordid cases in musty Courts.

Sir Samuel spent his birthday in bed with a bronchial cold. He received over a hundred congratulatory messages. He has been coroner 51 years, and has conducted over 21,000 inquests. His son is Legal Advise to the Department of the Privy Purse, Siam.

FOUR EXCITING 3RD DIVISION GAMES TO-MORROW

Good Game

The Lincolns meet the Chinese Police and here a very good game should result. The Chinese are a well balanced team and held the champions, the East Lancs, to a draw last week, and were somewhat unlucky not to win. They will be handicapped to-morrow by the absence of Chan Chui, who was ordered off the field last week.

The Lincolns just scraped home against the European Police last Saturday and will have to show up better if they are to win. The Chinese Police are a very much nippier lot than their European colleagues and indulge in the short-passing game which should keep the Lincolns on the move all the time.

Airmen's Task

The meeting of the Air Force and the European Police should provide another good game. The Police have not settled down properly and, though they have been beaten in both their games they give promise of a bright future. There are several players in the team who shone last week, among whom were Greig and Willerton.

The Air Force are considered serious contenders for the championship, but in a scrappy game last week against the Medicals they were forced to share the points.

The Fusiliers, who will meet the Railway on the Railway ground, were surprised by St. Joseph's last week when they were forced to a draw, but they should have no difficulty in collecting both points to-morrow.

forwards, but they should be waiting for the ball instead of having to forage for themselves under the sometimes gruelling sun.

Five-Forward Attack

There are very few teams in the Colony which play the five forward attack, the majority being content with three real forwards and five halves.

South China "A" play both games to suit the conditions, but if they had the halves to supply them with a constant stream of passes, I am sure that the champions would play the five forwards attack and improve upon their goal-average immeasurably.

To-morrow's clash is likely to produce some very fast soccer, and all will depend on the intermediate lines.

THOSE NO-PARKING NOTICES

Woman Puts Her Foot Down

POLICE DEFIED

Colorado Springs.

No one is going to tell Mrs. Carrie Newton of Colorado Springs that she must not park her car in the street.

Mrs. Newton has decided that as she pays taxes she is entitled to use the streets as she wishes. She has started a vigorous campaign against "no parking" regulations—with such success that the police have given up interfering.

"I'll tear 'em down every time they put those signs out to keep me from parking on the streets that I pay taxes on," she said, defying theatres, taxi companies, bus companies and others who reserve kerb areas and erect "No Parking" signs.

"I'm sick and tired of driving around and around looking for a parking space and seeing these bus outfits making a depot of the streets and putting up signs saying that I can't park here and there."

Mrs. Newton gathered up a number of "No Parking" signs and carried them to a city refuse dump. She was arrested and fined £5.

She began knocking the signs over with her car. She was arrested again. Then other motorists rallied to the cause, and began to park in the forbidden zones. The police gave up efforts to stop them.

"The City Council have no right to lease the streets, and if they want to go to the Supreme Court about it, I'm ready," is Mrs. Newton's latest challenge.

WARWICKSHIRE BEATEN

East Midlands Win At Rugby

London, To-day.

In the first Rugby Union Championship game at Northampton yesterday, the East Midlands, runners-up in the Midland group, beat Warwickshire, semi-finalists in the Inter-Group Round, by 11 points to 7.

In the one other game played yesterday, Swansea, the conquerors of the New Zealand All Blacks, beat Bridgend by 8 clear points.—Reuter.

ROBBERY IN DES VOEUX ROAD

Kerosene Poured On Inmates

Lam Ling, aged 34, unemployed, was this morning sentenced to six months' hard labour by Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police court for the theft of $8,700, 18 gold rings, a wrist watch, four pairs of earrings and nine gold bangles from No. 275, Des Voeux Road Central on July 17, 1933, and with putting fear of bodily harm into Tsang Cheun-kun and his wife by means of menaces and threats.

Defendant pleaded guilty and Inspector M. Murphy said that on the date in question defendant and five or six others were admitted to the premises by a foki who had been employed there about two years. The men poured kerosene on the inmates and threatened to set fire to them if they did not keep quiet. They were then placed in a cubicle while the robbers ransacked the place. They left after being there an hour.

PEER'S DAUGHTER "HATES JEWS"

Letter To German Paper

A WOMAN FASCIST

Berlin.

A letter signed by "Unity Mitford," the 21-year-old daughter of Lord Redesdale, is prominently published in the newspaper Stuermer, the newspaper owned by Herr Julius Streicher, Governor of Franconia, and prominent leader of the anti-Jewish drive in Germany.

The text of the letter is:

Dear Stuermer,—As a British woman Fascist I should like to express my admiration of you. I have lived in Munich for a year, and have read the Stuermer every week.

"Decent"

If we only had such a newspaper in England! The English have no notion of the Jewish danger. English Jews are always described as "decent." Perhaps the Jews in England are more clever with their propaganda than in other countries. I cannot tell, but it is a certain fact that our struggle is extremely hard.

Our worst Jews only work behind the scenes. They never come into the open, and, therefore, we cannot show them to the British public in their true dreadfulness.

We hope, however, that you will see that we will soon win against the world enemy, in spite of all his cunning.

"Heil Hitler"

We think with joy of the day when we will be able to say with might and authority:

England for the English!
Out with the Jews!
German greetings! Heil Hitler!

Unity Mitford

P.S.—If you find room in your newspaper for this letter, please publish my whole name. I do not want to sign U.M., but I want everyone to know that I am a Jew hater.

In German

The Hon. Unity Mitford told Reuter that she was the writer of the letter, the text of which she confirmed.

"I wrote it in German while I was in Munich," she added. "I have no further statement to make about it."

that scepticism as to the effectiveness of action as a whole is natural, seeing that Poland, the Argentine, Switzerland and perhaps Yugoslavia, will resist.

GERMANY'S ATTITUDE?

Moreover, several journals point out that Germany's attitude is exceedingly important because, by remaining neutral and declining to participate in sanctions, Germany could supply Italy with many articles of necessity.

If Germany, owing to its own shortage of raw materials, was unable to profit greatly economically it is highly probable, says Le Petit Journal, that the upshot would be a political rapprochement between Germany, Austria and Italy.

L'Echo de Paris says that nobody is surprised by the Austrian and Hungarian action since an agreement between Italy, Austria and Hungary has existed since March 17, 1934, but the effect is that the Powers can hardly prevent Italy getting raw materials through the hole in the northern frontier thus created.—Trans-Ocean Service.
